THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION:

VOL. XXI.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 13, 1889.

THE LONG CONGRESS.

THE MENBERS ANXIOUS TO GET AWAY.

ONLY FOURTEEN SENATORS PRESENT

The Most Dismal Session of Congress Ever Whoesed—The Democrats Waiting for the Assiyoes.

Washnoron, Octobar 12.—[Special.]—The number of senators present at the session to day drindled to fourteen, but more members showed up in the house than for two weeks past. Many of them, however, were from Maryland and New York, and only returned for the day in hopes of getting some private bill through. Both bodies adjourned over until Monday, and by that day it is expected that the attendance in both houses will have dwindled down considerably. It was a common observation at the capitol today that the building has never presented so dull an aspect during a session of congress. The question of adjournment was uppermost in all minds. Every one seems willing and anxious to adjourn, but the leading democrats in the house will not introduce the resolution, nor will they accept one from the republican side until the By your seems willing and anxious to adjourn, but the leading democrats in the house will not introduce the resolution, nor will they accept one from the republican side until the analysis now being made by experts of the senate tariff bill is completed, and an exposi-tion of it is given to the country. It must be printed in the Record, in order that it may be scattered broadcast over the country under the frank of democratic members. The analysis will be completed in a few days, and many members hope the present farcical ses-sions will come to an end by a sine die adjournment about next Saturday or the early part of next week. In fact this is the almost nanimous opinion, but one crank in the house, and there are some here, can prevent the mabama, who said a day or two ago, that no ad-journment resolution should pass the house without first going to a democratic caucus, has reconsidered his statement, and is now in fareconsidered his statement, and is now in favor of adjourning next week.

THE NEW YORK SITUATION.

Members and politicians over from New York today report the situation there is in an exceedingly complex state. The nomination of Erhardt by the republicans for mayor makes four candidates now in the field. The nomination was to have been given him merely as an empty henor, with no notion of his being elected, but with the hope of drawing off votes from Mayor Hewitt. The labor party have put up a candidate in one James J. Googan, an east side merchant, an Irishman and a Catholic. This discounts all the effect of Tammany's nomination of Grant, so far as and a Catholic. This discounts all the effect of Tammany's nomination of Grant, so far as the unattached masses are concerned. If Grant should withdraw in Coogan's favor, or Coogan, which is far more likely, should get out of the way for Grant, and Erhardt could hold the rank and file of the republican party, there might be some chance of beating Hewitt. This is the chief were not he. There is no chance, whatever, of making him resign in anybody's favor. Many claim that the republican plan is to trade votes for mayor with either the Grant men or the Hewitt men for votes for the republican national ficket, but New York members place no credence in this talk. They say emphatically that the entire democratic vote will, in New York, be cast for Cleveland, and that both the county democracy and Tammany hall will. inty democracy and Tammany hall will ow all their strength to him. notwithstand-the wrangle over the mayorality, and that is certain to carry the state.

Monday,

Washington, October 12.—After the transaction of some routine business, of no public interest, the senate resumed consideration of the tariff bill, and Mr. Chace continued his speech which he had begun yesterday, and which was chiefly directed to a review of the merits and demerits of the two parties in regard to the postal service.

gard to the postal service.

At the close of Mr. Chace's remarks, Mr. Allison, with an assumption of gravity, moved that the tariff bill be now taken up, and feigned surprise on being informed by the presiding officer that that bill was before the senate.

Mr. Dolph said that there was some anxlety felt on the north Pacific coast in regard to the provision of the senate bill as to the tariff on coal, and he asked Mr. Allison if the senate bill put coal on the free list in any form.

Mr. Allison said in reply, that he had had several inquiries in the same direction, Coal slack, or the culm of coal was put on the free list; but that was one of the mistakes in the bill and should have been corrected before the bill was reported. It was the intention of the finance committee (at least of the majority) that coal, slack, or culm, should pay a duty as now, or perhaps an increased duty.

Mr. Dolph—Will the senator state what that arlicle is.

article is.

Mr. Allison—It is refuse coal which passes through a half-inch screen according to treasury regulations. But it is difficult to distinguish coal and coal slack. So that the committee proposes to put all coal upon the dutiable list, at the rate now provided by law, 75 cents per ton. That is one of the amendments which the committee will propose at the proper time.

Mr. Call reviewed Mr. Platt's argument of vesterday as to the sectional conspiracy against labor.

of vesterday as to the sectional conspiracy against labor.

The attempt to connect financial questions and economic questions with old difficulties that existed between the people of the United States was, he said, equally unworthy of the senator and of a reasoning mind outside of the senator and of a reasoning mind outside of the senator. It could not address itself to the judgment and intelligent thought of any class of people. How, he asked, should taxes be reduced? The democratic party had formulated and placed before the country a proposition to the effect that the method of reduction should be to reduce taxes on articles of general consumption. The republican party had antagonized that proposition, and insisted that the duty on a large proportion of articles necessary for human life should not be reduced, but should be increased, and that taxation was a benefit and not an injury to the people of the country. That was the great issue to be considered by the people. As a friend of order and conservatism, he deplored the doctrine on which the senate bill was founded. It was not in the interest of wise protection. It was not in the interest of just distribution. It was not in the interest of just distribution. It was not in the interest of just distribution. It was not in the interest of just distribution. It was not in the interest of just distribution. It was not in the interest of the protection of capital. It was based on a wild theory which every thoughtful economist knew to be atterly untrue; a theory that restriction on trade, that taxation could bring prosperity and comfort, and wealth, and inatterly untrue; a theory that restriction on trade, that taxation could bring prosperity and comfort, and wealth, and invention. It was n fatal mistake, a mistake which concerned the rich as well as the consumer. This movement for tariff reform was not, as Mr. Platt had alleged, a southern conspiracy. The south had but little to do with it. It was the unrising of intelligent thought of the world. He was in favor of a reasonable tariff, but he would tax the luxuries of life, not the necessities.

Mr. Hawley said that he had brought his Mr. Hawley said that he had brought his notes and documents with the intention of making a speech of an hour or an hour and half's duration, but he frankly confessed that he had not the courage. His heart failed him, partly because his heart was in another place. He was very glad that the senate bill had been reported. He thought it a very good bill, perhaps the best first drait of a tariff bill ever submitted to congress. It was builton a definite principle, the maintenance of the old doctrine of protection, that which had been excepting

The president, in returning the bill disapproved, says:

Many cases have occurred in which pensions have been awarded by special acts to the widows of soldiers who, having remarried, were a second time made widows and rendered destitute by the death of their second husbands.

I have not objected to such charitable legislation. But I think this is the first time that it has been proposed to grant a pension after such remarriage when the second husband still survives. It were to me that such a precedent ought not to be established. If, in pension legislation, we attempt to determine cases of this description, in which the second husband cannot, or does not, properly-maintain a soldier's widow, whom he has married, we shall open the door to mueli confision and uncertainty as well

WHY MORTON WANTS TO CARRY N. C.

The Republicans Give Up New Jersey-John C. New's Want of Enthusiasm Over In diana-Other Political News of the Day.

NEW YORK, October 12 .- | Special . |- The democrats have the republicans on the run. A sure proof that the republicans are desper ate is the tricks, and in one instance, downright forgery, they are resorting to to change the tide against them. There is a Harrison and Morton dry goods club on Broadwaythat, if complaints be true, and there is little doubt about it, which daily circulates cards bearing the forged opinion, attributed to the London Spectator, that "Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any prime minister of England has ever done. The Spectator has pronounced it bogus, declar ing that no such utterance ever ing that no such utterance ever appeared in the paper. In the face of this denial the eards are distributed just the same. Instead of a campaign of intellect, as Colonel Brice, chairman of the democratic national chairman of the democratic national executive committee, once termed it, as far as the republicans are concerned, it has degenerated into a campaign of lies. Quay, the boss of Pennsylvania, is bringing all of his peculiar methods into action. His offer of $25,000, as a reward for the discovery of frauds in registration, is considered buncombe by even the republicans. He did it on the principle that it would attract attention from republican schemes.

One of their schemes is to colonize voters in counties in this state adjoining Pennsylvania. The democrats have checkmated their plans at every turn. Senator Quay, the taciturn head of the republican campaign, is an unhappy man today. Two things disturb his peace. The democratic papers discovered that he sought advice from Jay A. Hubbell and ex-Senator Stephen W. Dorsey, two republicans who once carfied Indiana. It is alleged with the free use of crisp two-dollar bills. Mr. Quay is afraid the report might drive the silk stocking republicans away from the republican fold, or at least make them more apathetic than usual. COLONIZING VOTERS,

Mr. MORTON'S SCHEME.

Another thing that upsets his equanimity, so it is currently reported, is Levi P. Morton's desire, which means demand, that the republicate republicate residual committees are republicated as a second committee of the committee of th desire, which means demand, that the republicans national committee send money to North Carolina to help carry that state for Harrison, but more especially to elect state officers. It is alleged that Mr. Morten's painful desire to carry North Carolina results from the fact that his banking firm owns many millions of North Carolina bends, issued during carpetbag days for railroads that were never built. Mr. Morton, so the story goes, bought these bonds for a song. If the state goes republican, the chances are his bends will be more valuable. Mr. Quay thinks it very hard that he should have to boodleize a dead sure democratic state to make worthless bends valuable.

THE MAYORALTY RACE.

Rumors are thick tonight that Richard Croker, the head of Tammany hall, intends to ask Mr. Grant, the Tammany mayoralty candidate, to come down so a un'on can be made with the county democracy. He does not think Grant can beat Hewitt since the republicans have put a dummy candidate merely to trade him. Then Mr. Croker personally admires Present Cleveland, and is afraid that if the local fight becomes too fierce, the national ticket might be considered of a secondary importance. Mayor Hewitt has many republican supporters. Mr. Croker recognizes the futility of a race against him. The great desire among the leaders of the democratic factions is to insure a full vote for President Cleveland. I would not be surprised to hear of a complete I would not be surprised to hear of a complete

I would not be surprised to hear of a complete union between Taumany and the county democracy within three days.

Senator Gorman, of Maryland, is at democratic headquarters now assisting to conduct the campaign. He and the president are good friends now, and the latter has great confidence in his political sagacity. Mr. Gorman is directing the campaign with unusual vigor.

THE CHARTER ELECTIONS.

The recent democratic victory in the charter election in the city of Newark, N. J., a large manufacturing place, is considered a large straw to indicate the critt. Hitherto Newark has gone republican. The republicans, I learn upon reliable authority, have given up New Jersey. They don't intend to spend another cent in the effort to carry it. They are in despair about Indiana. Major John C. New, of Indianapolis, one of the most solid and bitter republicans, two months ago claimed that Indiana would give Harrison 25,000. He made a trin through the state recently and made a trip through the state recently and now languidly asserts that it will probably give Harrison 10,000 majority... Other republicans who know the general's optimism, say that he puts the figures only at 10,000. It means that Indiana will give Cleveland at least 5.000 because he always claims over 10.

least 5,000, because he always claims over 50 The county democracy committee of twentyfour, tonight adopted resolutions to the effect that the interests of the democratic party demanded unison on congresss, assembly and business men's Cleveiand and Thurman clubs will parade and participate in a grand mass meeting. Secretary of the Treasury Fairchild. Speaker Carlisle, and other eminent orators will address the meeting from the steps of the sub-treasury on Wall street.

Sunset Cox was renominated tonight for congress, and will be elected. Ashbel P. Fitch, who was elected as a republican but voted for the Mills bill, was nominated for congress by the democrats this evening. He will be elected because a great many republicans will vote for him. I can state almost authoritatively that a congressional union will be effected between Tammany and the county democracy.

Thurman. MITCHELL, Ind., October 12.—Governor Hill, of New York, addressed a great meeting of democrats here today. In the course of his address he said:

of democrats here today. In the course of his address he said:

Four years ago we were engaged in considering other questions growing out of sectional animosities between various sections of our country, and today, my friends, we are permitted to discuss these economic and industrial questions, because under the laws and statesmanlike administration of Grover Cleveland, our country has been entirely—and complicity—pacified [Applause.] Therefore, the first point that I make in favor of the democratic party in this election is that the opportunity for discussion of these questions that the opportunity for discussion of these questions that there and a half years national democratic administration, [Applause.] My friends, the democratic party proposes a revision of the tariff. It does not propose the destruction of the tariff, but it proposes a simple modification of it. We think that raw material, where it is possible so to do, should be admitted free of duty. We believe, in the second place, that taxes upon the necessaries of life should be made as light as possible. Upon these two points we may confidently appeal to the people in this campaign.

Governor Hill discussed the tariff question at length, and said of the republican senate:

Fam not here to discuss the wisdom or details of that bill, but I am here to say, in the light of these clains, in the light of the attitude of the republicans in congress and out of congress, that the report of Governor Hill in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Cotober 12.—Governor Hill and party arrived tonight. He made brief speeches at Seymour and elsewhere on the rute. He said at Seymour:
Fellow-citizens: I thank you for this cordist greeting. Four years ago our opponents predicted that the country would be ruined by the advent of the democratic party to power. They predicted that the country would be ruined by the advent of the democratic party to power. They predicted that we would assume the confederate debts [laughter]; that we would repediate the national debt; that the colored people would be restored to slavery; that the industries of the country would be paralyzed, and disaster of every kind would overtake this land. Today we can say that all these picticions of our adversaries have come to naught. We have now had three and a half years of wise sacessmanship. In the administration of public affairs in the last thirty or forty years there has not been one equal to that given us by Grover Cleveland, our prasident. Enthusiastic cheering.] The question which is now prescuted is whether there shall be a change of administration. It whink that the business interests of the country are satisfied with the present administration. The country is reasonably prosperous. Our industries are flourishing. Our people, in the main, are receiving good wages, and everywhere there is contentment. No one, no matter how bitter partisan he may be, doubts the sincerity of the president. He may have made mistakes. I cannot recall what they are. He has submitted to the people suggestions in regard to the tariff. What he proposes is the best interest of this land. The democratic party proposes to relieve the people from the burden of unnecessary taxation. That, my friends, list the issue of the hour. We believe that the place for the surplus taxes is in the pockets of the people, and not in the icetral treasury. We believe reduction should be madoland we believe it can be accomplished without hipting any in

Secretary Fairchild Says His Visit Has Noth ing to Do With the Matter. Washington, October 12.—It is authoritively stated at the treasury department today that Secretary Fairchild's visit there yesterday had nothing to with the matter of bond purchases, and furthermore, that there has been arrival, and was, therefore, not the result of any conference he had yesterday with Speaker Carlisle and officials of the treasury department. Secretary Fairchild will deliver a political address in New York tomorrow, and it is understood that he came over to Washington to confer with the president and Speaker Carlisle and others in regard to that matter. The statement that the department has practically decided to limit future bond purchases to five millions per month is emphatically denied at the department. An official, who does not want his name mentioned, but who is in position to speak with authority, said this afternoon that there had been no change whatever in the policy of the department in the matter of buying bonds, except as indicated in the notice issued yesterday that offers of bonds held as security for national bank circulation will not be accepted for the present. The reason for this, he said, was Isimply because deposits for October had already treached the limit fixed by law.

THE DEFAULTING TREASURER.

More Evidence of His Rescutity Coming to Light. More Evidence of His Rescritty Coming to Light.

Fall River, Mass., October 12.—As the examination of the books of the Stafford mill progresses, new evidences of the rascality of Treasurer Bosworth are discovered. Today two notes turned up, one for $15,000 and one for $15,000, which Bosworth had issued without the knowledge of his directors. This, with the $20,000 shortage already discovered in the books, makes the total amount of defalcation up to date $45,000, and there is every possibility, owing to the ample opportunities which Bosworth enjoyed, that it will reach more. The mill people are not inclined to say much regarding the crookedness, but it is known that one turned up in Yew Bedford and others in Beston.

St. Louis, October 12.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Alma, Kansas, says: Fields, the outgoing county treasurer of Waubansee county, was today discovered to be a defaulter in the sum of $20,000. His bondsmen are perfectly good, and the county will lose nothing. He made an assignment for the benefit of his bondsmen, but has been placed under arrest at the instance of the county commissioners.

MASON CITY, Iowa, October 12.—Iowa had two bank failures yesterday. Bover Valley bank, at Woodbine, and the Caidwell bank, at Logan, closed their doors, and Judge King was appointed receiver. Both banks were operated by the same firm. The total deposits will not exceed $50,000. The failures are attributed to too heavy speculation in land. He May Resign. The few strikers that gathered around the barns this morning declared that cars would not be allowed to run. Northside cars made their trips this morning without serious interference. The track obstructions were few and the populace seemed to have become weary of shouting "rats" and "scabs" at the new men. Chief Hubbard says that cars will soon be started from the Western avenue barns. Two hundred and fifty policemen have

A torpedo of some sort was exploded last night under the wheels of a Sedgwick street car. This was at first supposed to be only the ordinary railroad alarm torpedo. Later it was stated that they were powerful dynamite bombs of small size and again that they were perfectly harmless, and that some found, which had not exploded, were practical jokes, being composed of plaster of paris made to resemble a track torpedo. This confusion arose from the fact that two kinds of bombs were found on Sedgwick street and others on State. The latter were harmless, and officials at policheadquarters got the two reports mixed.

Last evening after the bombs on Sedgwick street were found, Captain Shack sent for an expert connected with one of the big powder houses of Chicago and gave him the packages. The gentleman took them home and thi morning brought them back.

"So our government statistician is the authority on which the bears base their schemes of robbery and plander. A servant of the people, appointed to do a people's will, furnished the information on which the people are made to pay $2 a barrel more for flour.
"Four hundred millions of bushels of wheat, 1,435,184,858 bushels of corn, sugar so plenty that it was actually getting cheap. We have parties crying for cheap bargains in foreign goods and food, and right under their noses they are making the home articles as dear as it is possible to make them. Congress is in session quarreling over a tariff bill to regulate the price of articles that come to our shores in ships, and Hutchinson is raising the price of that which is mative to the soil, and which every working man is most in used of, but no steps are taken by congress to put an end to Hutchinson and his methods.

"Is there any remedy for this condition of affairs? Can we put an end to this system of robbery without revolution? If there is a way it should be pointed out quickly, for men will not be turned ont of work on the eve of winter and be told at the same time that their source of revenue is cut off, that the price of food has gone up. Human nature will not stand everything, and it should not be asked to."

EXECUTION OF A NEGRO GIRL.

The Murderer of Annie Jordan Dies on the Scaffold. UNION SPRINGS, Ala., October 12.—Pauline McCoy, ajnegro girl, aged nineteen, was hanged here today for the murder of Annie Jordan, a fourteen-year-old white child last February. The execution was private, only the necessary persons being admitted. The crime for which the woman was hanged was a peculiar one. The victim, Annie Jordan, strayed away from home in Montgomery and nothing was heard of her until her dead body was discovered in a pine thicket at Three Notch, in this county. Circumstances pointed to Pauline, and she was arrested with the dead girl's clothing on her. She was found guilty has spring and sentenced to death. Efforts were made to get the governor to interfere, but to no avail. No demonstration of any sort was made. Union Springs, Ala., October 12.-Pauline

A COAL OPERATER KILLED By a Striking Miner. Who Took That Way to Get Even.

ST. Lours, October 12.—A special from Macon, Missouri, says that Thomas Wardell, a wealthy coal mine operator, was killed at Bevier this afternoon by striking miners during a riot. Nearly all the mine owners have ing a riot. Nearly all the mine owners have engaged new men, tad they have been coming in from abroad for several days past. This action of the operators has greatly incensed the strikers, who have been bitter in their expressions against their employers, especially Wardell. Threats have been made by the strikers against the new men, but there was no violent demonstration until today, when some of the men were set upon by the strikers, and a general battle followed. During the battle Wardell was shot and killed. There is intense excitement at Bevier, and fears are entertained of further bloodshed. The sheriff and a posse have gone to Bevier.

THE WEATHER GROWS COOL.

And Jacksonville Begins to Feel Hopeful Again.

Jacksonville, Fla., October 12.—[Special.] The weather is decidedly cool. The slight increase in the number of new cases creates no depression. People generally are very hopeful that the end is in sight. Contributions to day amounted to $2,975. The principal matter brought in the executive committee was the reports of the prevalance of yellow fever in South Jacksonville, across the river, and that people were attempting to suppress the facts. No resident physician lives there, and amount suffering is said to exist in consequence. After some discussion, a conference committee was appointed to confer with Surgeon Porter, regarding the establishment of a hospital at South Jacksonville.

J. C. Greeley, one of the committee, was seen at the medical bureau later on. Being questioned he stated that he was then seeking an interview with Dr. Porter regarding the establishment of a hospital over there. "For," said Mr. Groeley, "If fever assumes an epidemic form, it will be very difficult te get physicians who will have to cross the river. I think, therefore, that some steps should be taken about this matter, and feel assured that Dr. Porter will give me his cordial co-operation.

THE POSTAL CLERKS.

Nobody in this country is watching the changes of the weather more anxiously than the postal clerks now engaged at the mail fumigating station at Wayeros. These men have been constantly engaged in their duties since the 11th of August last, and have had, with risk from fever and exposure which they are leading, a very rough time. No men in government service have undergone greater hardships for the benefit of the people at large than this board of postal clerks, of whom Major Mansfield, formerly chief of the service in this district, is the recognized head. The Way-vross station will be continued until the first heavy frost falls throughout Florida, an event which is looked forward to with much concern by many thousand persons from the stricken Florida city who are now refugeein by many thousand persons from the stricken Florida city who are now refugeeing all over the country.

Fernandina in fature will have to get her supplies and money from Jacksonville. This is what Surreon General Hamilton has decreed, and as he is supreme in this matter his dictum settles the question so distasteful to our afflicted sister city.

Today Surgeon Porter received a telegram from the surgeon general that in future he also would have to look after Fernandina's wants, and Surgeon Porter cheerfully complies, although it is a big load on his shoulders looking after both places, but Porter is a man who can thoroughly take care of his additional duties. He has shown people here that he understands his difficult work.

RAPID CITY, Dak., October 12.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the pay car on the Black Hells and Fort Pierre, near Lead on the Black Hills and Fort Pierre, near Lead City, today. As the train was rounding the curve into Reno galch, it again plunged into the gap in the track make by robbers. The train had searcely been ditched when three masked men assailed the pay car. W. A. Remer opened fire on the robbers with a Winchester with good effect. The robbers soon saw their plan to rob the car was futile and tried to escape. Two were shot, but the third got away. One of the robbers, named John Wilson, was captured, and is in Deadwood jail. He is so badly wounded that he cannot live. Another, named John Clark, is supposed to have died in the woods from the effect of his wounds, as Wilson says Clark was seriously wounded. The third was named Johnson and escaped.

THE WHARF CAVES IN.

A Terrible Scene—The Chief Engineer Drowned.
Vicksburg, Miss., October 12.—A slice of land at the wharf boat at Kline's landing, firteen by ten feet, caved in today, and carried with it into the river Priton Harrison, chief engineer of the Vicksburg Wharf and Land company, who had charge of both road and steamers. Harrison was warned of his danger, but replied: "It is nothing; it will slough off as it did before."

The bank soon commenced sinking. Then the railroad track broke, and a car load of cotton tumbled into the river. The unfortunate man went down in a whirlpool, surrounded with rail ties and bales of cotton. No other lives were lost.

Shot by His Brother-in-Law.

RALEIGH, N. C., October 12.—[Special.]—At Salisbury night before last, W. H. Overman was shot by his brother-in-law, A. R. Vanyick, Vanwyck had been drinking and Overman was taking him home, when he dropped behind Overman, drew his pistol and shot him in the head. The bullet ranged upward, passing along the skull, and came out on top of his head. The skull was fractured. Overman's injury is very serious. He is one of the meet prominent citizens of Salisbury.

OF HER EXECUTIONER. Negro Murderers in Terrell County Jail-The

Montgomery County Tragedy-General

Ex-Sheriff W. H. Mathews, of Webster buty, died in Sunter county from an overdose of udanum. There are many who insist that it was suicide. Mathews was sheriff of Webster when a suicide. Mathews was sheriff of Webster when Susan Eberhardt was hanged. She was the only white woman ever hanged in Georgis. In 1871, Miss Eberhardt, a buxom country girl, aged 15, was an inmate of the house of a well known farmer named Bpann. One morning Mrs. Spann was found dead in bed, while her husband and the girl were missing. The wife had been choked to death by stuffing a white handkerchlet down her throat. The excitement which followed spread to all parts of the state. white manuscrenier down her throat. The excitement which followed spread to all parts of the state. For six flays the guilty pair were pursued on a dozen different trails, and were finally run down on the Alabama line. It was only through the most vigorous measures that the rail were ground from Alabama line. It was only through the most vigorous measures that the pair were saved from lynching. On the trial of the case it was developed that Miss Eberhardt slept on a cot in the same room with Mr. and Mrs. Spann. At two o'clock in the morning Miss Eberhardt was awakened by Spann, and invited to aid in putting Mrs. Spann out of the way. Miss Eberhardt stuffed the handkorchief down the unfortunate woman's throat, while her husband held her down. The pair were convicted and sentenced to death. Miss Hberhardi's sentence to life imprisonment.
They held that it would be a disgrace to Georgia to hang a woman. Deputations of prominent ladies waited upon the governor, and petitions from New York and other places poured in. All the arguments against the execution of women were presented Governor Smith, however, was firm, and the lay took its course. Mis Eberhardt, with her guilty lover, were hanged in an open field near Preston. While the execution was in progress Governor Smith received, it is stated, forty-five telegrams begging him to commute the woman's sentence. Sherift Mathews, who was then a hale and hearty man, dreaded the task before him, and though he had a strong sense of duty, yet he could never recover from the slock of having to hang a woman. The circumstances of his death, while claimed by some to be accidental, are looked upon by the supersti-tions as confirming the theory of suicide.

Since 1881 the number of true bills found by the grand juries of Houston counton have steadily decreased. In 1881, the last year of legal whisky selling in the county, the grand juries sent seventyseven true bills into court. This year there were only thirty-two true bills. Seven prisoners broke jail in Eastman last Wednesday night and escaped. This is owing, no doubt, in a great measure, to the ald independent element that is stil dissatisfied because Candler beat Sico in the first place and because se he beat Colonel Lester for the no the second. Of course the suppost of this class is not to be expected, but we have abundant evidence that the true and tried democrats in all the upper tier of countier, as well as many republicans, will yote for Candler, and that if Pickett carries any o them it will be by such meagre majorities that they will be overwhelmingly overcome by the large majorities east against him in this part of the dis-

MORMONS IN AUGUSTA. Baptist Church Expels Four Faithless

Members. Augusta, Ga., October 12.—[Special.]—The presence of Mormon elders about Augusta, and their work among the poor people in the factory wards, has been noticed from time to time in this correspondence. Converts have been made from among the ignorant mill op-eratives, and the elders are said to be doing a good business here. The Kallock Street Bap-tist church is the first to take formal notice of them and has just publicly expelled four of its members because they joined the Mormon elders. These proselyting elders have been warned from time to time to leave, but seem bent upon working here, and are gaining members. Unless they take their ideparture for other climes, it is not improbable that they may receive active persuasion to do so.

Henry Hightower was arraigned this morning before Justice Freeman, charged with lareeny from the house. It was thought that, as Henry had been seen with a large sum of money, he was the one who stole $140 from the Edgerton house safe, which belonged to Mr. W. M. Parker, of Augusta, a guest. Henry had been a waiter at the hotel, but left the next day after the robbery. Thirty-nine dollars of the money with which Henry was seen was found in a chum's house by Officers Johnson, Porter and Matthews. There was no evidence presented today to convict Hightower, and he was released.

Two negro boys, Willie Foster and Blount Wilson, had a fight this morning about a debt of fifteen cents owed Foster by Wilson. It seems that Schley Yonman, another employe of the street car company and Lingo, were fquite intimate, and Lingo confided to Youman the fact that he had poisoned the mules. Youman left Macon a few weeks ago and the detectives located him on a farm near Findlay's on the Georgia Southern railroad where they went last night and arrested him about nine o'clock, returning to Macon this morning. Youman made a clear breast of the entire matter, not implicating breast of the entire matter, not implicating himself, however. Lingo was accordingly arrested as stated above. Youman will be used as a witness against Lingo. Detectives Shackelford and Wilson have certainly done a good piece of work.

This after on a negro man named Willi Singleton was severely burt by being hit on thes lead with a piece of wood thrown from an engine that was coming into the city. It seems that the fireman has a practice of throwing a steek of wood out, so that his family can get it, when the train passes his house. This afternoon he threw it out without looking where it would land, and it struck singleton on the head, knocking him down and making a severe cut.

A great deal of cotton came into the city to day. The rece the grow larger every day in orde to meet the mass of maturing obligations on th 15th instant. Much of the cotion that arrived to-day came by wagon. The Central railroad com-press and the compress of English & Co., are kept busy day and night. Farmers about Macon report the cotton yield as good. About all of the late them cotton has been marketed, and the staple now coming in samples well. The price, however, is not as strong as the farmers desire.

Depots along the Georgia Southern road are being built, and the telegraph lines placed in position. Mails will also soon be established, and the Georgia Southern will then have all the facilities and advantages of the best roads. Business is increasing rapidly, and when the line is open to Tifton traffic will be quite large. The road is well officered, and all the conditions are favorable for a prosperous life. The Georgia Southern will be of inestimable benefit to Macon and all the section through which it passes.

Jim Banks, a negro residing in Stinsonville, a short distance from Macon, went home drunk last night and beat his wife severely, and badly bruised one of his children by hitting it with a shoe. Banks's wife tried to make him go to bed but instead he said he was going out to get a drink. In trying to go down the steps his heel caught on one of the steps and he fell heavily to the ground, breaking his left wrist. This morning Banks became very peniteni, and swore to his wife if she wouldn't prosecute him for wife beating he would never again get drunk.

Among the interesting cases tried at the Houston superior court this week was that of Nathaniel Allen vs. J. A. Riley. The case was to foreclose a mortgage of $\frac{2}{2}$. (60) honored through the land loan agency of Major R. F. Lawton, of Macon. Defendant plead usury. Under the charge of the judge the jury rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount of the loan, with interest and attorneys' fees as agreed on in the application for the loan. At a former trial a verdict was given for defendant. A motion for a new trial will be made Dr. S. B. THE BAGGING TRUST.

From the Fort Gaines, Ga., Star, NEW YORK, October 4, 1888.-Messrs, Peterson & Co., Fort Gaines, Ceorgia: Dear Sirs—We are now prepared to offer you jute: bagging, for cover-ing cotton, at the following prices for immediate ate to various so-called substitutes for jute bagging, late to various so-called substitutes for jute begging, but the planter will sooner or later realize that there is today no real substitute that can be made availy able which can be compared with jute begging-even at present prices. The present position of affairs makes it highly probable that a further advance in prices will take place in the near future. Yours truly,

L. WATERBURY & CO.

The above letter explains itself, though in connection with it we wish to add a few thoughts.

In the first place, last June Messrs. Peterson

In the first place, last June Messrs. Peterson & Co. wrote this same firm for prices on jute bagging, and it was quoted to them at eight cents, but with the earnest advice that they do not buy at that time, as it was sure to come lower. They were at that moment on the very eve of the infamous "trust," and were delaying all orders as much as possible for the purpose of fleecing their customers, just as they have done. Instead of the then promised decline, bagging has advanced to 132 cents from the eight cents then quoted. So much for this part of the steal.

These "combine" swindlers, after making a

These "combine" swindlers, after making a sickly effort to justify present prices, advise Messrs, Peterson & Co. to buy at once. If they had followed their disinterested (?) advice last June and got left, it is hardly probable that sensible business man would listen to their oily misrepresentations the second time. Judging the future by the past, this advice of theirs would rather indicate a decline instead of an advance in price.

These wary writers claim that there has been no adequate substitute yet suggested to take the place of jute bagging. What bosh! If the Dundee, Scotland, bagging, the New Orleans cotton baling, the Carolina pine-straw wrapping, and, in fact, a number of other substitutes, are not infinitely superior to jute in every sense of the word, then we are no judge of such matters. You are wrong, boodlers.

of such matters. You are wrong, boodlers.
There are plenty of superior substitutes, and the bagging trust and jute bagging must go.
In conclusion they promise a still further

In conclusion they promise a still further advance in prices. Let her go, Gallagher!—sky high if you want to. The price amount to nothing. Another season your trust-lader jute will be unknown in the cotton belt. Yes run it up just as high as you please—the higher the better. You have already benefitted the planters untold millions, and all you can do will be to drive them further from your infa-

ADVERSE TO THE STATE

Two Important Decisions of the Supreme Court of North Carolina. RALEIGH, N. C., October 12.—[Special.]— The supreme court has delivered an opinion in two very important cases. One is the case of Gatlings vs. Boone, from Hertford county. Gallings vs. Boone, from Hertford county. This involved the powers of county canvassing boards in regards to returns of election. This matter is of the greatest interest to the entire state. Judge Merryman delivered the opinion, which is that canvassing boards have only power to receive returns of election, and have no power to go behind such returns. Chief Justice Smith has filed a dissenting opinion.

The other case is that of the Eastern Carolina Land and Lumber company against the state board of education. This involves the title to ninety thousand acres of land in the eastern part of the state. The opinion of the court is adverse to the state. The property was acquired by a state grant ninety-three years ago. The state claimed that the land had been forfeited by reason of the fact that no taxes had been paid on it from 1807 to 1873, but the court decides that there was no forfeiture because the state took no action to make the forfeiture complete.

RALEIGH, N. C., October 12.—[Special.]—
The Durham tobacco exposition closed today.
Fifteen thousand people were in atteneance.
The display covered all Durham's industries, and also one hundred exhibits of leaf tobacco.
Speeches were made by Governor Scales and Senators Ransom and Vance. There was a trade procession a mile in length, and a competitive drill of military companies, in which the Governor's Guard, of Raleigh, won the first prize. The special feature was the reunion of the Sixth Carolina regiment, veterans being present to the number of two hundred. The battle flag was carried. It is claimed that this is the only flag which was ever planted in the cemetery at Gettysburg. The regiment carried it there in the assault upon the heights, and planted it upon a federal battery in the cemetery.

Lieutenant Carter's Trip. Augusta, Ga., October 12—[Special.]—Lieutenant O. M. Carter, of the United States engineering corps, stationed at Savannah, is in Augusta tonight. Lieutenant Carter has charge of all improvements, and all the appropriations for Georgia and Florida rivers are expended under his supervision. He will go down on the steamer Advance tomorrow to note the damage along the river from the late freshet.

Augusta's Freshet Concert. Augusta Presset Concert.

Augusta, Ga. October 12.—[Special.]—The concert tonight at the opera house for the benfit of the sufferers from the freshet, was a brilliant success. A fine audience was in attendance and a snug sum realized. Charlestoh contributed some of her finest musical talent. THE WEEK'S TRADE.

How Speculators Advanced Prices of Bread stuffs-The Business Failures. New York, October 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s eview of trade for the week said: The past week has shown the mischievous influ ences of speculation, and the artificial nature of current prices. Wheat rose about 8 cents per bushel, broke 11 cents in two days and again rose rapidly, closing 1½ cents higher than a week ago. Cors advanced a fraction, but receded. Oats have bushel, broke 11 cents in two days and again rose rapidly, closing 1½ cents higher than a week ago. Corn advanced a fraction, but receded. Oats have risen a quarter and coffee about three quarters of a cent, but lard has fallen nearly one cent, and the fictitious prices in cotton have yielded with quotations ½ cent lower. Oil has fallen 1½ cents, and the sudden advance in hides having resulted in duliness. Prices have yielded ½ cent. The fluctuations in the main, without any reason in conditions of demand and supply, have a tendency to retard all legitimate business. But gambling swells the volume of transactions so that the cleanings at cities outside of New York, show an increase of 16 per cent over last year with gains of 59½ per cent at Chicago and ½ per cent at St. Louis, where wheat speculation rages; and 21 per cent at Boston where stocks have been fluctuating wildly. Flour has advance is likely to cause a great decrease in consumption.

Exports have been virtually stopped from Atlantic ports. Only 276,485 bushels went out last week. Meanwhile the corn crop is estimated at 2,117,000,000 bushels, and the cheapness of corn tends to lessen the home demand for wheat.

Later advices as to cotton are less satisfactory, and in Louisiana, Mississippi and the castern Guif states the yield will fall below last year's, but the market declines because the previous price was fictitious. At current figures, there is scarcely any margin for profit in exports. Interior reports show that business continues satisfactory, and in Louisiana, Mississippi and the castern Guif states the yield will fall below last year's, but the market declines because the previous price was fictitious. At current figures, there is scarcely any margin for profit in exports. Interior reports show that business continues satisfactory and in Louisiana, Mississispi and the resure Guita survey and the delay in marketing it, out the survey of the profit in exports. Interior reports show that for the profit in exports. Interior reports show that for ness and many look for no change until after the election.

Merchandise imports last week were 11 per cent smaller than last year's, and exports from New York also show a shrinkage of 6 per cent. Railroad earnings continue large, but crop prospects do not favor confidence in the continuance of traffic through the winter on last year's scale. Unless prices of exportable products yield, the export movement for some months to come may fall much below expectations.

Business hailures occurring throughout the country during last week number for the United States 193, Canada 34; total 227, against 211 last week.

TRAMPLED UNDER FOOT. The Mad Revenge of a South Carolina Lover.

COLUMBIA, S. C., October 12.—[Special.]— Lawrence Harris is a young white man of social standing in Piercetown, Anderson country, this state. Miss Minnie Hammond is the only daughter of D. H. Hammond, one of the only daughter of D. H. Hammond, one of the wealthiest planters of the county, and is the acknowledged belie of the village. For some time past young Harris has been an ardent suitor for Miss Hammond's heart and hand. The young lady, however, did not reciprocate his love for her, and received his attentions with the coldest indifference. Harris, however, was not in the leat discouraged. He has visited Miss Hammond's home daily for the past week, but on each visit she treated him more coldly than eyer, and finally, for the past week, but on each visit she treated him more coldly than eyer, and finally, when he called Wednesday evening, she declined to see him. This provoked Harris, and he swore that he would be revenged. Last night the rejected suitor mounted a spirited horse, and again called at the Hammond residence, and asked for Miss Minnie. He was told that she had just left the house with several friends, and was on her way to church, about a mile and a half distant. DECISIONS RENDERED DURING THE Reported by Henry C. Peeples-Hons. L. E. Bleckley Chief Justice, and H. Blandfor Decisions rendered October 8, 1888.

Decisions rendered October 8, 1888.

Atlants National Bank vs. Burke, for use. Complaint, from Fulton. Banks. Deposit. Forged Indorsement. Diligence. Interest. Before Judge Marshail J. Clarke.

Blandford, J.—1. That Burke was himself imposed upon by the forgery by Knapp of the name of Knapp's wife as maker and granter of a note and deed, would not preclude Burke from complaining of the payment by a bank of a check drawn upon it by Burke in favor of Mrs. Knapp to Knapp upon the forged indorsement by Knapp of her name upon said check. Nor is it true that, because. Knapp's own indorsement was genuine, and followed the forged indorsement of his wife's name and he was the last indorser, the bank was not bound to fook to the genuineness of her indorsement Smith vs. Mechanics & Traders' Bank, 6 La. Ann. 610, and Levy vs. Bank of America, 24 Id. 220, disapproved and distinguished.

2. When the bank reported to Burke, in a statement of its account with him and return of his bank book with the check in question, that it had paid the money on the check, it appearing therefrom that the money was so paid on the indorsement of Mrs. Knapp though actually paid to Knapp, he being the last indorser, Burke had a right to rely upon the supposition that Mrs. Knapp's indorsement was genuine, there being nothing to put him upon notice that it was forged. The Leather Manufacturers' bank vs. Morgan, 117 U. S. 96, distinguished.

3. The money being in the hands of the bank on general deposit it was entitled to hold it without payment of interest, consequently Burke could not recover interest thereon from the time the check was improperly paid. The bank not having paid out the money, as between itself and its depositor, it is only chargeable with interest as if the money had still remained in its hands.

Decisions rendered Wednesday, October

Decisions rendered Wednesday, October 10, 1888;
Lies & Co. vs. Daniel. Refusal of Injunction, from Fulton. Before Judge Marshall J. Clarke.
Bleckley, C J.—The question of fact whether the cigar boxes held for sale and being sold by the defendant, with the marks, devices and decisions of the complete control of the contr the defendant, with the marks, devices and designs thereon, are such colorable imitations of the complainants' goods as to be likely to deceive or mislead purchasers to the injury of complainants, being for the jury on final hearing of the bill, and irreparable damage not being probable, there being no charge that the defedant is insolvent, there was no error in denying an interlocutory injunction. Injunctions in restraint of trade should be sparingly granted before final decree. The B. B. B. case, 77 Ga., 216.

Judgment affirmed.

On the call of this case, on motion, the following order was passed: "It being made to appear to the court that Fritz Brothers have a direct interest in the result of this cause, though they are not parties to the record, it is ordered that they have leave to appear by their counsel, Harrison & Peeplés, as provided by $4275 of the code of Georgia." A. H. Cox and Harrison & Peeples, contra.

Atkinson vs. City of Atlanta. Case, from City Court of Atlanta. Municipal corporations. Nuisance. Statute of limitations, Constitutional law. Before Judge Van Epps. . Blandford, J. - Pryor to the constitution of Binding 3.—If you to the constitution of 1877, if the property of one were damaged by the building of sewers and grading of streets, unless it was done unskillfully, it was damaum absque injuria, and the provision in that conabsque injuria, and the provision in that constitution as to compensation for damages to private property, as well as for its taking for public use, did not make that a nuisance in law which was not a nuisance before. Hence, a suit for damages, both past and future, must still be brought within four years from the doing of such work by the city. As there was no original nuisance there could be no continuing nuisance.

Haas vs. Kansas City, Fort Scott and Gulf Railroad Company. Attachment, from City Court of Atlanta. Railroads. Strikes. Damages. Profits. Bills of lading. Before Judge Van Epps.

Simmons, J.—I. Where a railroad company receives freight for shipment and its employes strike, or cease to work for the company, it is still bound to forward the freight within a reasonable time; but if the strike is accompanied with violence and intimidation, so as to render it unsafe to forward the freight, the company is thereby relieved from liability for delay. especially when the resistence made by strikers is of such a character as could not be overcome by the company, or controlled by the strikers is of such a character as could not be overcome by the company; or controlled by the civil authorities when called upon by it. Geismer vs. Lake Shore railway company, 55 Amer. Rep. 837, and cases there cited.

2. It the proceeds of flour, sold when it did arrive although unusally delayed in arriving, were sufficient to pay the amount of the draft advanced by plaintiff upon the faith of its shipment, he could not recover in this action. Profits he anticipated making at the time he made the advance could not be recovered by him from the railroad company.

made the advance could not be recovered by him from the railroad company.

3, The bill of lading for the flour not having been indexed to plaintiff by the party in whose favor it was issued the former could not maintain an action against the company upon it.

(a) Even if there had been such indexement a bill of lading is not such a negotiable interpretary to to give to the assignee any other ment a bill of lading is not such a negotiable instrument as to give to the assignee any other or greater rights than the assignor had; and the assignor having received the bill of lading with the knowledge that the flour was not at the time on the line of road of defendant, but on the line of a connecting road, he could not have recovered damages for delay in its delivers if the connecting road was prevented. have recovered damages for delay in its delivery, if the connecting road was prevented from forwarding it by an armed mob. Tison & Gordon vs. Howard, 57 Ga. 410; Shaw vs. R. R. Co., 10i U. S. 557.

(b) It is too late, after a case has been argued and after the court has spent hours in its investigation, to suggest mistakes in the record; such suggestions should be made on or before the calling of the case.

2. A demand is not dispensed with by a fraudulent execution of the illegal trust, or a false and fraudulent account of the result. Judgment affirmed with direction.

Demark & Adams and Hall & Hammond for plaintiff Jackson & Jackson, contra.

Blair vs. State. Salling liquor to minor. Two cases, from city-court of Atlata. Criminal law. Consent of parent or guardian. Before Judge Van Epps.
Blackley, C. J.—When the statute alleged to be viciated inhibits the selling or furnishing spirituous or intoxicating or malt liquors to any minor, without first obtaining written authority from the parent or guardian of such minor, it is no justification or defense that the parents of the minor in question were both-dead and he had no guardian. Code, §4540 (a).

Benley vs. State. Larceny, from a railroad car. From city court of Atlanta. Criminal law. Larceny. Misdemeanor. Before Judge Van Epps.
Simmons, J.—1. The evidence fully authorized the verdict.

2. The defendant was accused of entering a railroad car and stealing therefrom a certain quantity of corn. There was no evidence that the car was broken open, or if broken that the defendant did it; but the evidence showed that corn was stelen from the car and that defendant was arrested in the streets with one of the stolen sacks of corn in his possession. The proof made a case of misdemeaner under $4419 of the code.

ATLANTA. GA., OCTOBER 13, 1888.

How They Work It. There is one thing that can be said of the management of the present republican campaign, which applies as well to those who have had charge of other republican national campaigns, and that is—they are sharp! But somehow or other the people nearly always catch up with them, and their deep laid schemes generally fall with a crash. Some recent exposures develop the fact that a very interesting little plot was formed to catch Mr. Powderly four years ago; but the able head of the Knights of Labor refused to take the bait. It appears that the republicans wanted to make Mr. Powderly the head of the labor bureau of the government with the understanding that he was to come out for Mr. Blaine. It is even announced that Mr. Blaine himself was the originator of the proposition. The gilded hook, however, which was so adroitly thrown in for the master workman failed to catch him, and to their astonishment, when the republican managers made their great jerk, thinking they had Mr. Powderly on the hook, they found that it came out as free as it went in.

They are at the same old tricks this year. but they have profited by the lesson of the past and have turned to other waters than ose which hold Mr. Powderly. They baited for Charles Litchman this time, and they caught him, and Mr. Litchman now presents the interesting spectacle of dangling before the eyes of the country on a hook which he ought to have had sense enough to have avoided. He is general secretary of the Knights of Labor and has been quite prominent in the affairs of that order. His jetter in favor of Harrison bears every evidence of being a choice extract of republican management; and Mr. Quay's nimble fingering is seen all through it.

But unfortunately the people have caught on to the game and Litchman's letter has fallen as flat as a hydraulic pressed pan-that he is writing a book. He is a book of himself, in two volumes.

CONGRESSMAN GEORGE BARNES denies

They Should Go Home. It is time that congress should Its days of usefulness are over, at least for the present session, the prolongation of which can result in nothing but a steady annoyance to the whole country. It is a very difficult matter for either branch to secure a quorum, and day after day the unvarying spectacle is presented of a handful of men in either house meeting and adjourning without being able to accomplish anything of any importence to the Most of the members have gone to their homes, and will return certainly not before the presidential election, if congress is in session at that time; and it now seems that the session will be an indefinitely long one. The present session is already the longest one on record, and now that the members have achieved this distinction, there is bu little necessity for them to tax the patience of the people any longer. If there was any good that could come of it, or any real necessity to continue the session, it would be a different matter; but there is no earthly excuse for congress to hold on in the manner in which it is now doing, with the majority of its members away, and those that are there doing nothing but killing

Give us a rest, gentlemen, and come back to the bosom of your dear constituents for if you continue this foolishness much longer, the people will not be inclined to give you such another opportunity.

GENERAL TECUMSEH SHERMAN'S NEW war will be a much more important affair than his march to the sea. The Negro Vote Again.

Alluding to the fact that at the recent election in Georgia the democrats had little or no opposition, the republican organs declare that it is the result of buildozing and They say that the failure of the repub licans to nominate candidates and support them is another evidence that the negroe are not permitted to exercise the privilege of voting; and they draw forth the bloody shirt and proceed to wave it most vigorously.

But to what purpose? Governor Bullock, who was a republican in Georgia when i was dangerous to be one, owing to the attitude of Thad Stevens and his radical coadjutors, has time and again announced through the columns of some of the most prominent papers in the country that the apathy of the southern negroes is due to the fact that they have lost confidence in some of the men who used to lead them, and to the further fact that democratic home rule has been favorable to their advancement and development.

He has also explained, with some degree of pungency, that no party, not even the where there is not even the semblance of party organization. The negroes suppre their own votes and do so deliberately.

The great mass of them no longer take any serious interest in politics. While the privilege of suffrage was new they were charmed with it, and they flocked to the polls in great numbers, but the novelty of the affair has worn off. They have failed to receive the promised donation of forty acres and a mule, and they have therefor lost all interest in the voting business.

This is the result, not of bulldozing and oppression, but of republican mismanagement, and the defection in the negro vote may be traced directly to the white republican leaders themselves, who have wilfully deceived and misled the colored voters. The organs may howl and rage, but their antics will not affect the situation. The negroes may be republicans and they may be willing to vote the republican ticket, but experience has taught them that they make greater advancement and accumulate nore property under democratic rule.

EDITOR WILLIAM MOORE, of Augusta. is in the city. He proposes to show the boys how to row a gondola, and some of his songs are inimitable.

Tempting the Fire Fiend. It is a great thing to have a first-class fir department. But when a city is thus equipped it does not follow that ordinary precautions against fire should be neglected.

In all large southern cities the safe stor age of cotton is an important matter to be considered in guarding against fire risks. Sometimes warehousemen are very careless On one of our leading business streets large quantity of cotton is stored in a brick ouilding. On an upper floor the loose cot ton is piled up against the windows where the broken glass allows the wind free entrance. In the neighborhood there are large manufacturing establishments whose chimneys may at any moment convey sparks to the cotton and ignite it, setting the whole building in a blaze in the twinkling of an eye. Possibly the wind will never carry a spark into this mass of loose cotton, but it is an unnecessary risk, all the same, and there is no use in running it. We have a solidly built city, and our facilities for putting out a fire are all that could be desired. But we should draw the line somewhere, and it should be drawn when it comes to tempting the fire fiend.

AT the north the republicans are afraid to attend the cattle shows. This shows that the campaign is becoming intense.

A Wise Despot. The action of the sultan of Turkey in pro hibiting the publication of morning news papers was a wise stroke of statesmanship from his standpoint. He did not prohibit the evening newspapers-he doubtles thought that they did not count, that they had but little circulation and influence. The wily Turk knew that one great morning newspaper in Constantinople was more to be dreaded than a hostile army. It would naturally drift along with the current of advanced thought, and would oppose his despotic methods. It would do more than any other one agency to civilize Turkey, and with civilization despotism would have to Despots have always hated a great news paper. A royal governor of Virginia once thanked God that there was no newspaper in his commonwealth. Napoleon denounced journalists as meddlers and grumblers, "the egents of nations, the tutors of sovereigns.'

No doubt the sultan will be able to regulate and control the evening newspapers in his dominions. But even the fear of his executioner's bow-string will not keep the enterprising correspondents of the great morning newspapers of the world from invading his cipital city and exposing his dark secrets. It is useless for him to attempt to bar out the morning newspaper-it is everywhere; it will get the news at any cost, and print it regardless of the consequences. Will the Ottoman empire down the morn ing newspaper, or will the morning newspaper down the Ottoman empire? There can be but one answer to the question.

THE solid south continues to be a source of annoyance to Editor Halstead. As matters now stand, the contest is between Editor Halstead and the solid sunny south, with all the chances in favor of the latter.

The Boozy Mr. Binford.

In these days notoriety is everything. Without it a man can do but little; with it all the prizes of life tumble into his lap. Sane men and women have their fads and affectations in order to attract attention, and cause themselves to be talked about, Men attempt ridiculous and impossible enterprises, knowing that they will fail, simply because they need notoriety to help them into a good position.

It does not matter whether this conspicuousness is creditable or otherwise. Men want it for revenue only, and they cannot afford to be too nice about it. A case in point is Mr. Berry Binford. A few weeks ago Mr. Binford was sent to a hospital in Memphis as a yellow fever suspect. He was unconscious at the time, but when he opened his eyes the next morning he telephoned for a cocktail and conducted himself in a perfectly rational manner. After the citizens had been scared out of their wits the doctors discovered that their patient had simply been on a big spree. The story went abroad, and the festive Mr. Binford was the sensation of the day. Now comes the upshot. A New York man who wanted to advertise his business, offered the boozy Mr. Binford steady employment and a large salary. The offer was accepted, and the lucky man at once left Memphis for his new field of work. It is a queer piece of business. A sober industrious man with a needy family might have strained every nerve without avail to get that situation. But Mr. Berry Binford without the slightest effort, boozed himself into it. It is funny, and yet it is sad. A MAN named Skinner has printed his views on the tariff. Skinner ought to be a member of a trust, Canada Wants War. The blustering talk of Senator Sherman and others about the purchase of Canada has excited the bitterest resentment on the other side of the St. Lawrence.

The Toronto Empire, the chief organ of the Canadian government, says that no country ever took such a liberty as the United States is taking with Canada without republican party of the south, can exist having first resolved upon war with the in-sulted nation. The Empire reminds us that the Canadians number five million people, and although they have submitted in the past to the offensive methods of this country, the time has come when Canada's dignity and honor call for a more vigorous policy.

The meaning of all this seems to be that Canada is fighting mad because we love her so well that we are willing to take her into the sisterhood of states and pay her debts. A war cannot very well grow out of such a matter, but it is possible that our neighbors will use the fisheries question as a pretext for opening hostilities.

Of course such a war would mean a fight with England. At first it would go hard with us, In the war of 1812 the British swarmed over the Canadian border and held Michigan a whole year. We met with many disasters, and when peace was finally secured we had gained nothing.

The situation now is far different. While we are in no condition for either an offen sive or defensive war, it would not take nore than a year to get everything ready for successful operations on land and sea. At the end of the trouble it is not likely that we would be satisfied with the running of a new boundary line or a few resolutions on paper. Canada would be ours by conquest, and our people would be in no mood to let the enemy go on easy terms.

The Canadians will find it to their interest to keep in a good humor with us. A friendly proposition to cultivate closer relations with them does not justify letting slip the dogs of war.

The Edwin Martin Fund.

The newspaper men of Savannah have organized a committee for the purpose of raising a fund for the family of the late Edwin Martin, of Jacksonville. He was the managing editor of the Times Union and has been newspaper man of recognized ability for a long time. He rose from a practical printer to the managing editorship of this well-known paper by hard work, attention to duty, and un-daunted perseverance. His devotion to duty is illustrated in the brave manner in which he held his post after the dread epidemic had almost depopulated Jacksonville. He sent his wife and children to a point of safety and stuck to his work until overtaken by the plague, he was compelled to lay down his pen, and after a hard struggle with the disease, died, leaving a family in poor circumstances.

The Savannah memorial fund committee argently appeals to newspaper men and practical printers throughout the country to contribute to this fund. Drafts should be made payable to J. H. Estill, chairman of the Martin memorial fund committee, Savannah, Ga. A SALVATION ARMY woman who was arrested for beating a drum in Bloomington, Illinois, has recovered $500 damages. The drumming of the Salvation Army is all rightit is their singing that smashes the patience of the public?

READ BETWEEN THE LINES. General Sherman's recent article in the North American Review, is nothing more nor less than a sug-gestion to the negroes to take the torch and lagger and rise against the whites. The general lags superfluous. He has outlived his usefulness, and the sooner he is hustled off to an asylum, the better it will be for him and his

THE WASHINGTON POST has been thrown back again upon Stilson Hutchins's hands. The attempt to make it an independent paper did not pan out very well.

THE SHERIFF IS making desperate efforts o get editorial control of the New York Star. THE NEW YORK PRESS thinks that the attempted assassination of Editor Edmunds, of the Annistsn Hot Blast, is in accordance with southern political methods. Not a bit of it. The affair grew out of prohibition, and men have been killed in northern and western states on account of that burning issue time and again. Has the Press forgotten the murder of the prohibition preacher Haddock, at Sioux City, Towa?

GENERAL SHERMAN AMUSES himself in his old age by predicting all sorts of terrible things. He reminds us that the northern peoare not easily pacified. He says that if the negro vote continues to be suppr will be another war, more cruel than the last. of well-ordered battalions. This talk about the suppression of the negro vote is unworthy of a man of sense. There is no civil war looming up in our future, but if one should come. it is difficult to see how it could be more crue than the last, or at least that part of it which was waged against us by General Sherma and his torch-bearers.

ALTHOUGH JOHN MINOR BOTTS was a stro union man, General Lee continued his friend during the war. Just before the march into Pennsylvania, Mr. Botts said to General Lee: have been fighting an army away from their homes, but when you strike the northern fireside you will find it a different matter. They will rally like blackbirds. They are made of just as good stuff as we are, and you will be defeated." The general shook his head "I know it," he said. "It is not my plan. I am opposed to it. I only obey orders.

RELIGION IS COSTLY in England. A lecturer pays $2.50 for a license, and it costs the same to hold service in any biulding or solemnize a marriage. A license to preach is ten dollars For a dispensation to omit an ecclesiastical duty a preacher has to pay $150. THE PHYSICIANS SAY that excitement short ens life. On the other hand, the oldest soldiers and sailors are men who all their lives were accustomed to exciting scenes and great danger. So, after all, it is a question of a sound body and a strong mind. Lord Brougham said that his long life and good health were due to the fact that he was always aggressive, and always actively interested in every great polit ical and moral movement. THE REV. H. F. MOTT, of Dubufue, is charged with reproducing one of Dr. Talmage's sermons. The tunny part of the business is sermons. The funny part of the business is that the charge was made once before, but the controversy was settled on the ground that "the cause of religion was being greatly damaged by the attack on Mr. Mott." One would like to know how the cause of religion could be helped by keeping a thief is the pulpit. The man who can stand by a pastor travers to be guilty of placing in the part of the pulpit. known to be guilty of plagiarism has no moral convictions that are worth anything, and his professed solicitude concerning the cause of religion is only a part of his hypocritical

An Eloquent Speech .- Dr. Kerler, of the firm of Ker ler & Jones, who has recently returned from a visit to Gettysburg, was talking the other day to a Cox-stitution reporter about what he saw and heard in that historic netghborhood. "I had a very nice time," said the doctor, "and I made a discovery."

"Why, I always thought that Lincoln's Gettys burg speech was the most eloquent piece of orator swer delivered in that neighborhood, but it seems was mistaken.

"'Well,' sold he, 'it might have been a fine speech and I gues it was, but the purtiest talk I ever heard came from General Gordon, of Georgia. A day or two before the battle the confederates occupied the town. Me and my wife and two daughters were standing at the front gate when the boys in gray came in, and we thought that the town would be sacked and all our property destroyed. General Gordon was at the head of the troops, and he reined in his horse, lifted his hat and said: 'Ladies and gentlemen, do not be alarmed. We are not here for purposes of plunder and robbery. Your property shall not be disturbed.' Now, this is property shall not be disturbed.' Now, this is what General Gordon said, and I thought it was

No matter, he says, how young looking the person may be, if his eye brows lack a gloss and do not lie flat and smooth, he is no longer a young man.

BERNHARDT'S PECULIARITIES.

ome Interesting Terrestrial Failings of th from the London Star.

Madame Bernhardt has left London for Viehy, where she proposes to combine business with pleasure by the production of her familiar repertoire and the enjoyment of whatever the watering place has to offer. The divine Sarah is a woman of exceedingly quick, not to say violent, temper, and those who saw her behind the scenes of the production of the product temper, and those who saw her behind the scenes one night last week can jeture to themselves the famous occasion when she called on Marie Colombier with a horsewhip and broke everything in the house. The Lyceum curtain had hardly fallen on her tragic death scene in "Fedors," when she was storming and raging at an unfortunate actor, who had chanced to make some trivial blunder during the course of the play, and she attacked him with a webemence that almost amounted to franzy, utterly vehemence that almost amounted to frenzy, utterly refusing to listen to his explanations. The trage-dienne storms are, however, like thunder showers, violent while they last, but quick to pass away, and even Mile. Colombier has now been reinstated in her favor.

It is wonderful that with her unflagging indus-dustry, and her magnificent receptions all over the globe, Sarah Bernhardt should be able to keep perpetually in a state of pecuniary embarrassment. She lives a sort of hand-to-mouth existence, pos-sessing a genius for squandering money, whenever she has any, and utterly careless what the morrov may bring forth. Not long ago the balliffs made a raid on her property, and among other things the notorious satin-lined coffin, in which she often slept, was put up to auction, and sold for between £4 and £5. She seems to possess the gift of peren-nial youth, and her friends aver that she will never grow old. She herself has said that she intends her real death scene to be something peculiarly start ling and striking.

Sarah Bernhardt is a wonderful lightning carica turist, and there is nothing she so delights in between the acts—provided, that is, that no contretempts has occurred to ruffle her feelings—as plying her pencil at the expense of her friends. She and they and Damala can often be seen crouched together, making each other's portraits as fast as they can scribble. Damala has no notion of draw be correctness, and then he is in high favor with madame, his wife. She often finds the pastime so entrancing that she cannot tear herself away from it, and the audience have to begulle the tedium of the entracte as best they may.

WHY IT FAILED.

The Hugging and Kissing Made the Audience Laugh.

New York Letter. But the fact is that the peculiar reputation of "The Quick or the Dead," as a salacious work, full of impetuous hugs and kisses, prepared the way for inevitable merriment. The women who dominate the assemblages are alertly expectant of the temonstrations so warmly depicted in the novel. Barbara comes before them satisfactorily-a vision of loveliness—and until the appearance Deering upon the scene she is regarded with rapt admiration. Then the troublous jollity begins. His wooing is conventional, as represented in the stage version, and would be seriously accepted in an ordinary play, but under the circumstances his first emof his sweetheart sends an audible titter through the theater. When he impresses a quite decorous kiss upon her forehead the women snicker right out. There is no decorum in the house after that. Later, ripples of laughter and gurgles of giggle follow every juxtaposition of the lovers. When it comes to the scene in the woods, where ward to consider the folly of trying to guess a wo man's age. Barbara should be so remarkably kissed over a good portion of her surface, there is a lull in the ridicule, and lifting of opera glasses, and a general aspect of high expectancy.

"How do I know you love me?" Jock inquires. "By this—and this," resionds Barbara.

Then she kisses him twice on the forehead and he responds by a smack on each of her cheeks. That is all. The inadequacy of the representation seems o anger the feminine spectators a little and for an instant they gaze at each other in blank amazement as if to say: "Oh, that is nothing uncommon." Then they all laugh aloud, and the poor actors are made to realize all the tortures known to "guying." Af-ter that it is all in vain that Barbara frantically burns her letters, devotes her cherished bridal gown to destruction, sees the spook of her dead husband and goes generally to distraction. Her woes have been construed humorously and "The Quick or the Dead?" is laughed off the stage.

A TALE OF YELLOW JACK.

Terrible Scenes in Santiago de Cuba During a Visit of the Plague. From the New York Telegram. "I had the yellow fever in Santiago de Cuba about a dozen years ago," says Fred Wesson, of Lewiston, in the Journal, of that place. "I took it Lewiston, in the Journal, of that pines. I took it on shipboard and was taken ashore into a cell-like place where there were four stone walls, an iron grated door, two cot beds and on one of which lay a man dead from the fever. It was a month before I was strong. While I was in that place a Cuban revolution was in progress. A man lay sick near me in the big hall where I was moved after convalescence. I saw him murdered. It was the most awful murder I ever saw. A man sprang from his bed, ran over and buried his knife in this man's neart. Then he went back to his bed. It was awful I never will forget the scene in the low room with the whitewashed walls. The death gurgle sounded in my ears for months. I believe they executed the man afteward, but what of it! Politics was said to be at the bottom of it. A woman carrying her child in her arms, and in her frenzy at late political out-rages against one of her family, crying out agains the revolutionists, was shot dead in the streets with her child before her."

"Kiss Mamma, Too," From the Buffalo Express. An incident on an Allen street car last Saturday afternoon furnished amusement for a lot of passengers. A mischevious girl of about two and passengers. A mischevious girl of about two and a half years caused the trouble. A young man and his best girl boarded the car at Main street for Olympic park. The child was preceded and attracted the attention of the young woman. The intimacy between the two ripened very fast, for the baby exclaimed: "I like oo! I want too tis oo." The kiss was bestowed and then the affectionate youngster added: "I want too it so too." addressing oungster added: "I want too tis oo, too," addressing the young man. The latter complied with the with evident reluctance, but the eyes of flity or more passengers were on him, and he could not back out. Then the elf hurried the climax by saying: "Now tiss mamma, too." The young won scowled, the young man smiled, the mother scold-ed and the child received a spanking then and

She Rose to the Occasion. From the Baltimore Herald. A Wichita, Kan., woman has solved the uestion of free liquor, high license or prohibition with one fell and condign swoop. Her husband did not return home one night. She armed herself with an ax and sought the saloon where she knew he imbibed. Smashing in the front doors, she pro-ceeded to a back room where her better-half lay in a drunken snooze. The amazon fell to work and chopped the barroom appointments into kindling wood and ran the barkeeper out of the doors. She then slapped her husband's face until he woke up and dragged him home, where he was given a mighty threshing with a buggy whip. This woman was no theorist. She understood exactly how to subdue the rum power.

Remarkable Cure of Cancer

Dr. Mohr read a paper before the Homeo pathic State Medical society, recently, giving the history of an interesting and remarkable case of malignant growth of cancer cured by accident. The patient, a woman, was being treated with arsenic. Eryslpelas broke out and cured the cancer. This accidental cure, Dr. Mohr declared, has possibly opened up a way by which cancer can be cured with the virus of erysipelas. The paper created much talk and Dr. Mohr was asked a great many questions regarding his patient, who is now in better flesh than she has been for six years.

The Perfect Oyster. From Murray's Magazine.

The points of an oyster are first, the shape, which should resemble the petal of a rose leaf. Next, the thickness of the shell; a thoroughbred should have a shell like thin china. It should also possess an almost metallic ring and peculiar opales-cent luster on the inner side. The hollow for the animal should resemble an egg cup, and the fleah should be firm, white and nut-like.

TO GO OUT OF FASHION THE DECLINING DAYS OF THE

by Travelers. Now that the leaves begin to turn and the mercury is on the down grade in the thermometer, the health certificate is bound to go out of fashion. Like the summer suit and the gause undershirt, which fade away into the most obscure corner of the wardrobe, the certificate will yield to the frost that bloom in the fall and have loss to do with the case—as many a traveller has observed, in language. ase—as many a traveller has observed, in language that has often been more forcible than elegant

But the certificate will not be mourned But the certificate will not be mourned when it yields to the innocuous desuetude, and the expression will probably go hand in hand to the funeral of the certificate, which the frost will introduce to the attention of the oldest inhabitant, the signal service officer and the shotgun quarantine

The certificate has served its purpose well, however, and in his declining days a retrospective view of its career in Atlanta may be of interest.

The doctors who have been in the business can tell all the funny stories a person would care to hear, and the recounting of their experiences with the applicants for certificates form a rich fund of necdote. Dr. Woodward, whose anecote. handed her the pen.
Glancing at the certificate, as she took the pen to sign it, her eye caught Dr. Woodward's "45" opposite the word "age." She did not swoon. It would have been better for Dr. Woodward it she had. He told the doctor, confidentially, that he had never been in Birmingham and wanted a good send off in the certificate.
"You know, doctor, if you give me a good r mendation in the certificate it may help me to get a good position over there. Just do your level best, doctor," and he grew a trifle more confidential,

Sing to Me. Out of the silences wake me a song,
Beautiful, sad, and soft and low;
Let the lovliest music sound along,
And wing each note with a wall of wos.
Dim and drear
As hope's last tear,
Out of the silences wake me a hymn,
Whose sounds are like shadows soft and dim.

Out of the stillness of your heart—
A thousand songs are sleeping there—
Wake me a song, thou child of art!
The song of a hope in a last despair,
Dark and low,
A chant of wee,
Out of the stillness, tone by tone,
Cold as a snow-fiske, low as a moan.

Out of the darkness flash me a song, Brightly dark and darkly bright; Brightly dark and darkly bright,
Let it sweep: a lone star sweers along
The mystical shadows of the night.
Sing it sweet,
Where nothing is drear or dark or dim,
And earth-song soars into heavenly hymn.

dark on her own recognizance.

The grand jury wants Miss Murphy.

The details of this case have never been given fully to the public. A well known young man was charged with having accomplished her ruin, and he was bound over by Justice Tanner. The girl left the city, it is said, at Tanner. The girl left the city, it is said, at the instance of the defendant in that suit. A few days ago she returned.

When the present grand jury organized, a few months ago, the papers from Judge Tanner's court were brought before the body. After discussing the matter, the jury decided to give it a thorough investigation, but when the matter was called up the woman could not be found. The subpena which had been sent out to her was returned with the information that she was out of the city. A few days ago the jury ascertained that she had could not be found. The suppens when had been sent out to her was returned with the information that she was out of the city. A few days ago the jury ascertained that she had returned to the city and yesterday morning an attachment was issued for her. The paper was placed in the hands of Bailiff Monegan, and Chief of Police Connolly was requested by the jury to aid in securing the young lady's consent to be present. The chief began the search, and in the afternoon she called at police headquarters in obedience to a formal request. She was conducted to the chief's office, where the matter was laid before her clearly. Miss Murphy requested the chief to send for her attorney. Colonel T. P. Westmoreland. The colonel called at police headquarters, and for quite a while he and the chief and Miss Murphy remained in consultation. What passed between them is not known, as none of the parties would talk. Miss Murphy expressed a willingness to appear before the jury on Saturday, and the officers decided to permit her to go. The lady left police headquarters, and this morning will appear before the grand jury.

LOSING THEIR MONEY And Calling at Police Headquarters for John Morrow, an Alabama public school teacher, slept in a chair at police headquarters last night because he had no money to pay for boarding house bed. Morrow was robbed night before last.

The school teacher is a tall, spare made young fellow with auburn hair, and a red mustache, a freckle face and a tall white hat. Several days ago he lest his country school in Ala-bama wearing his best suit of clothes and carrying something less than a hundred dollars in his inside pocket. With his money Morrow carried a ticket to Rome, and for two or three days enjoyed the show.

On Thursday some one approached him offering a ticket to Atlanta for fifty cents. Morrow ing a ticket to Atlanta for fifty cents. Morrow thought the ticket cheap, and quickly made up his mind to take in Atlanta. That aftermoon he boarded the East Tennessee train but neglected to get off when the train stopped at the depot. Two stations below Atlanta he ascert tained that he had passed Atlanta and got off. When the north bound train came by he got on and came back to the city. Soon after reaching the city Morrow opened his purse. He had six ten dollar notes in it. One of these he took outlond purchased some fiquor. Then he began taking in the town. The liquor soon took him in, and about daylight yesterday morning found himself lying in a gutter on Alexander street. He was covered with mud and after surveying himself as best he could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between taking the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the figure of the could without a mirror, between the could without a mirror with the could without a mirror with the could without a mirror with the could without a mi

He was covered with mud and after surveying himself as best he could without a mirror, began taking stock. He found that his purse and money were gone and that a small hand satchel containing his school record and prohibition pledga were missing too.

The school teacher made his way to police headquaxters, and to Chief Connolly told of his loss. "Have you any recollectson of where were and who was with you?" asked chief.

The school teacher raised his hands to his head and pressed it hard a second.

"Do I remember where I went and who was with me?" he said in a dazed sort of way. "I never thought of that. Do I have to recollect all that?"

"Of corree"

"'No, I don't remember much. I do recollect however, that I had purchased three flasks of drinks. I had a bottle of apple brandy, one of peach brandy and one of whisky in a small hand satchel."

me the way to the Air Line depot. But that's all I do recall."

Morrow managed to describe the negro and Detectives Cason and Bedford instantly fixed upon Jim MeHenry who was arrested. The teacher identified McHenry as the negro but was not positive in it. Later in the day the satchel was found by a gentleman who sent it to police headquarters. The school records and the temperance pledge were in it but the money was gone. As the day wore on Morrow's memory became more pliable and he told of a young white man known as John Forsyth who was with him. Forsyth was found and conducted to police headquarters, but showed up all right and was released. McHenry satisfied the officers that he had not been near the school teacher and was released. Morrow now wants money to reach North Carolina where he has a brother who is a minister.

Whatley, Who Was Robbed.

Whatley, the young man from Meriwether county, who called at police headquarters day before yesterday, claiming that he had been robbed at Willid Burton's bagnio on Collins street, is still in the city. Whatley's story is not credited as much as it was when he first told it. When the officers began investigating the matter yesterday morning Madame Burton stated that she had given Whatley a dollar to buy something to est. Whatley a dollar to buy something to eat.
Whatley, according to Madam Burton's statement, called at her house on Thursday after he had been robbed and begged for some money, saying that he wanted something to eat. The woman took pity on him and gave him the dollar to buy something to eat and to procure lodging.

Quarantine and Politics.

From the Boston Globe. The Florida representatives in congress have not gone home to stump their districts yet. Politics and "yellow Jack" do not mingle readily. Sing to Me.

Out of the silences wake me a song,
Beautiful, sad, and soft and low;
Let the lovilest music sound along,
And wing each note with a wail of woe.
Dim and drear
As hope's last tear,
Out of the silences wake me a hymn,
Whose sounds are like shadows soft and dim.

Out of the stillness of your heart-Out of the sullness of your neart—
A thousand songs are sleeping there—
Wake me a song, thou child of art!
The song of a hope in a last despair,
Dark and low,
A chant of woe,
Out of the stillness, tone by tone,
Cold as a snow-flake, low as a moan.

Out of the darkness flash me a song, Brightly dark and darkly bright; Let n sweep : a tone star swee: a along The mystical shadows of the night. Sing it sweet,
Where nothing is drear or dark or dim,
And earth-song soars into heavenly hymn.

MISS MATTIE MURPHY MAKES A CALL AT POLICE STATION

e an Attachment Has Been Issued for Her-A Burglar Driven Away-A Luna tic's Escape-Other Police News.

Miss Mattie Murphy the young lady who figured prominently last summer in a sensation, was under arrest at police headquarters yester-day afternoon, but was released just before dark on her own recognizance. The grand jury wants Miss Murphy.

The grand jury wants Miss Murphy.

The details of this case have never been given fully to the public. A well known young man was charged with having accomplished her ruin, and he was bound over by Justice Tanner. The girl left the cfty, it is said, at the instance of the defendant in that suit. A few days ago she returned.

When the present grand jury organized, a few months ago, the papers from Judge Tanner's court were brought before the body. After discussing the matter, the jury decided to give it a thorough investigation, but when the matter was called up the woman could not be found. The subpœna which had been sent out to her was returned with the information that she was out of the city. A few days ago the jury ascertained that she had lew days ago the jury ascertained that she had few days ago the jury ascertained that she had returned to the city and yesterday morning an attachment was issued for her. The paper was placed in the hands of Bailiff Monegan, and Chief of Police Connolly was requested by the jury to aid in securing the young lady's consent to be present. The chief began the search, and in the afternoon she called at police headquarters in obedience to a formal request. She was conducted to the chief's office, where the matter was laid before her clearly. Miss Murphy requested the chief to send for her attorney. Colonel T. P. Westmoreland. The colonel called at police headquarters, and for quite a while he and the chief and Miss Murphy remained in consultation. What passed between a while he and the chief and Miss Murphy re-mained in consultation. What passed between them is not known, as none of the parties would talk. Miss Murphy expressed a will-ingness to appear before the jury on Saturday, and the officers decided to permit her to go. The lady left police headquarters, and this morning will appear before the grand jury. A Daring Burglar.

The gentleman secured his pistol and started for the window, but before he reached it, the burglar became frightened out. Cars Broken Open.

Several weeks ago some cars on the Belt road were broken open and twenty-five or thirty bams were stolen. The theft was reported at police headquarters and detectives began working it, but until yesterdry were unable to ascertain anything. A few days ago Detectives Bedford and Cason were induced to believe that the meat had been secreted smewhere near Bellwood. On yesterday the ybegan searching the locality and finally found the hams is two or three wells. LOSING THEIR MONEY And Calling at Police Headquarters for Help.

John Merrow, an Alabama public school teacher, slept in a chair at police headquarters last night because he had no money to pay for rding house bed. Morrow was robbed night before last.

The school teacher is a tall, spare made young fellow with auburn hair, and a red mustache, a freckle face and a tall white hat. Several days ago he left his country school in Alawearing his best suit clothes and carrying something less than hundred dollars in his inside pocket. With his money Morrow carried a ticket to Rome. and for two or three days enjoyed the show On Thursday some one approached him offering a ticket to Atlanta for fifty cents. Morrow thought the ticket cheap, and quickly made up his mind to take in Atlanta. That afternoon he boarded the East Tennessee train but neglected to get off when the train stopped at the depot. Two stations below Atlanta he ascerd tained that he had passed Atlanta and got off. When the north bound train came by he got on and came back to the city. Soon after reaching the city Morrow opened his purse. He had six ten dollar notes in it. One of these he took cut ond purchased some liquor. Then he began taking in the town. The liquor soon took him in, and about daylight yesterday morning found himself lying in a gutter on Alexander street. He was covered with mud and after surveying himself as best he could without a mirror, began taking stock. He found that his purse and money were gone and that a small hand satchel containing his school record and prohibition pledge were missing too.

The school teacher made his way to police ing a ticket to Atlanta for fifty cents. Morrow

The school teacher made his way to police headquarters, and to Chief Connolly told of his loss. "Have you any recollectson of where you were and who was with you?" asked the head and pressed it hard a second.

"Do Lremember where I went and who was with me?" he said in a dazed sort of way. "I never thought of that. Do I have to recollect all that?" The school teacher raised his hands to his

"No wonder you don't remember," remarked the chief laughing.
"That's so. I know too, that I put my purse containing fifty dollars in the satchel and its all gone."

Can't think of anyone who was with you?"

"Can't think of anyone who was with you?"

"I remember asking a negro man to show me the way to the Air Line depot. But that's all I do recall."

Morrow managed to describe the negro and Detectives Cason and Bedford instantly fixed upon Jim McHenry who was arrested. The teacher identified McHenry as the negro but was not positive in it. Later in the day the satchel was found by a gentleman who sent it to police headquarters. The school records and the temperance pledge were in it but the money was gone. As the day wore on Morrow's memory became more pliable and he told of a young white man known as John Forsyth who was with him. Forsyth was found and conducted to police headquarters, but showed up all right and was released. McHeury satisfied the officers that he had not ters, but showed up all right and was released. McHenry satisfied the officers that he had not been near the school teacher and was released. Morrow now wants money to reach North Carolina where he has a brother who is a minis-

Whatley, the young man from Meriwether county, who called at police headquarters day before yesterday, claiming that he had been robbed at Willie Burton's bagnio on Collins street, is still in the city. Whatley's story is not credited as much as it was when he first told it. When the officers began investigating the matter yesterday morning Madame Burton stated that she had given Whatley a dollar to buy something to eat. Whatley, according to Madam Burton's statement, called at her house on Thursday after he had been robbed and begged for some money, saying that he wanted something to eat. The woman took pity on him and gave him the dollar to buy something to eat and to procure lodging. Whatley, Who Was Robbed.

The first annual memorial service of the Fulton county Confederate Veterans association will be held on the evening of Sunday, October 23rd. As this is the first service of the kind that has ever been held here, it is hardly an annual meeting, as its purpose is to memorialize not only those that have died members of the association within the past year, but all that have died since the organization of the association—some twelve or fifteer in all

Rev. Dr. Cleveland, chaplain of the associa-Rev. Dr. Cleveland, chaplain of the association, will conduct the services, assisted by a number of prominent pastors of this city, at the Central Presbyterian church.

The solemn but beautiful and impressive service, significant of the fact that time is slowly but surely thinning the ranks of the old confederates, and expressive at the same time of the reverent and loving remembrance in which their dead comrades are held, is one in which every old soldier is interested. The veterans of the association will be present in a body, and once every year from now on until none of them are left.

It is funny—awfullv funny. It is funny in itself, and it is funny because it gives Mr. Ezra Kendall an opportunity to show how funny he can be. The play has been seen here before. The central figure play has been seen here before. The central figure is Jiles Button, an old countryman, and in this character Kendall is simply irresistible. There is more downright foolishness and fun crowded together in this performance than in any other of the same kind on the stage. Kendall is decidedly unique in his fun, and his fun is side-splitting. He has surrounded himself with a lot of clever people. Mr. Fitz, Miss Webster, the Delanos, and the "Mrs. D stunny," whose name doesn't seem to be on the bill, were all very good indeed. ANNUAL REPORT OF COMPTROLLER-GENERAL WILLIAM A. WRIGHT.

The Strongest and Most Brilliant Showing for the Grand Old State Which Has Be Made Since the War. The annual report of Comptroller-General

William A. Wright is now in the hands of the It is a most excellent paper, and makes the strongest and most brilliant showing for Georgia which has come to light since the war.

The phenomenal development of the state is clearly set forth. Under the head of "Reduction of Tax Levy" the says that with the large annual increase in the value of property and the completion of the new capitol which has required $200,000 per annum for five years, he is gratified to state that after next year the larged law attention of the state purposes.

already low rate of taxation for state purposes may be greatly reduced, and still all the penses of the government be met.

He says that railroad taxes should be paid to the state treasurer at the time of making the returns, or within sixty days thereafter, in order that this large item of the state's revenue may be included in the report to the legislature. Many of the roads delay payment until October 1st, the last day, too late to be included in the receipts for the report year, which closes September 30th.

Itinerant photograph artists should be spe-cifically taxed in each county in which they engage in business, just as traveling vendors patent medicines

The state, he says, with its returning properity, should do yet more for her brave, noble but unfortunate maimed and aged soldiers who have suffered in poverty and silence for twenty-three years. The pittance allowed them has been a great help, but should be increased to at least one hundred dollars annually. To show how rapidly these mer are dying he submits this statement of the amounts drawn by them since the passag of the first act in 1878:

Amount paid out by the state, 1879... Amount paid out by the state, 1883... Amount paid out by the state, 1886... He compliments the tax receivers upon their faithfulness and vigilance, as shown by the large increase in the tax returns of the coun ties. The tax collectors have been unusually prompt in their settlements with the state. Every account against these officers has been settled in full this year without the issuing of a single execution—something that has not occurred since he came into office. The following extracts from the report will be read with interest:

Early this morning Emperor William, accompanied by General Driquett, commander of the Eighth Italian army corps, visited Camp Centoirell, where a military review will be held tomorrow. He returned to quirinal, where he received King Humbert.

The emperor took luncheon with Herr von Schloezer, Prussian representative to the vatican, after which he proceeded to the vatican to visit the pope. He wore the uniform of the life guards, and was attended by Count Herbert Bismarck. Enormous crowds lined the streets leading to the vatican, and were very enthusiastic in their manifestations in honor of the emperor. The proposed displays in the vatican district were abandoned.

The empor's reception both inside and outside the vaticer, was conducted with the fullest state ceremonies. Prince Raspoll received the emperor, and conducted him to the pope's chambers. Two companies of palantine guards were stationed at the entrance of the hall. The pope, surrounded by his court, received the emperor, who bent his knee to the pope, whereupon the pope invited the emperor to a seat beside the throne. The suits having been presented, his holiness arose and led the way to the salla gialla, where he had a private interview lasting three minutes with the emperor. ROYAL BARING POWDER.

ABSOLUTELY PURE.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food. Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc., raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.

Prof. H. A. Mott. U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported:

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in mary tests made both for that company and the United States Government.

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most rel'able baking powder offered to the public.

A fair business was transacted in pork within a moderate range of prices. The offerings by several large operators were fair, and after opening 71/40 higher, declined 200 before noon. Offerings were small, a stronger feeling developed, and all decline was recovered.

Traders took hold of lard sparingly, and the market was quiet. Offerings were not large and a steady feeling prevailed.

A unoderate business was transacted in short ribs. A steady feeling developed and prices showed no change of impottance. NEW YORK, October 12.—[Special.]—Henry Clows & Co.'s circular: Liverpool opened at an advance of 3 to 4 points. The feature to our market was the wonderful strength in October, which opened 15 points higher than last night, while the balance of the list was only up 2 points. Those who bought yesterday out the weather bureau report were disappointed that the predicted frost did not come last night, and consequently were free sellers as soon as today's weather bulletin was posted. In fact they not only sold their purchases, but they put out cotton most too freely for short account. This resulted in a drep of 9 points, but when the selling pressure BPECIAL DEPARTMENT FOR LADIES.

LINE ROAD. Rate Committee Adjourns-Meeting of the Railway Mail Clerks in Cincinnati-The New Traffic Association. NEW YORK, October 12 .- The latest news of interest regarding the southern railroad situation, outlines the building of a new road to be called the Georgia and Carolina Coast line.

It is understood that a strong syndicate has been formed and plenty of money offered to build and equip this road.

build and equip this road.

The plan as it is made public here, indicates that the road would be allianced with the Georgia, Carolina and Northern, as it is proed to make a connection with it at Chehaw From Chehaw it is proposed to build an air-line along the coast, taking in Port Royal, Sa vannah, Brunswick, and then direct to Jack-

This is all that can be learned as to the line of the road. It is understood that a survey of this route will be ordered at once. The Railway Mail Clerks.

The following railway mail clerks will leave The following railway mail clerks will leave Atlanta Sunday night for Cincinnati, to attend the annual meeting of their association which will be held in that city, beginning on the 16th instant: Superintendent B. M. Turner will head the delegation; H. M. Robinson, B. A. Shumate, R. T. Allison, H. S. Moore, Jr., J. E. Woodward, J. T. Miller. The association is organized on the mutual benefit plan, and has a large membership. Mr. W. H. Arnold, of Greenville, S. C., will join the Atlanta party and go to Cincinnati with them.

Texas Open to Georgia Travel. So many conflicting statements were in circulation yesterday regarding the Texas quarantine, that THE CONSTITUTION wired for official informa-tion, asking the question as to whether travelers from Georgia holding certificates of health would be llowed to enter Texas. The answer was as follows: .

Galveston, Texas, October 12.—Yes, but the quarantine is still in force against travel from Florida, Alabama and Mississippi.

The News. The Rate Committee.

The members of the freight rate committee who were in Atlants, held a meeting yesterday, but no business of consequence was transacted. Only six of the twelve roads having a membership in the Southern Railway and Steamship association were represented, and the meeting was adjourned, subject to the call of the chairman. The lack of attendance prevented the transaction of important business in reference to classification and rates.

A New Association The Texas Traffic association will disband The Texas Traffic association will disband on Monday, the 15th instant, and a new association, to be called the International, will be formed. The following roads will have a membership in the new association: Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe; Denyer and Fort Worth; Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe; Houston, East and West Texas railway; Houston and Texas Central; International and Great Northern; Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis; Miscouri Pacific; Mexican Central; Mexican International; Southern Pacific; St. Louis, Arkansas and Texas; St. Louis, and Francisco; San Antonio and Akransas Pass; Texas Central; Texas and Pacific; Little Rock and Memphis.

Uniform Cotton Rates. Uniform Cotton Rates.

The local representatives of the Queen and Crescent system, the Central railroad of Georgia, the Kausas City, Memphis and Birmingham, the Georgia Pacific and the Louisville and Nashville, have arranged to meet saily in Birmingham for the purpose of comparing and acreeing upon cotton rates. These rates will be used in the billing of cotton destined for foreign ports.

An eleganity printed prospectus has just been is-

The Cartersville and Gainesville.
An elegantly printed prospectus has just been issued, giving a great deal of interesting information regarding the projected Cartersville and Gainesville Air-Line railroad. The directors of this road are Messrs, W. H. Howard, M. A. Hardin, W. J. Hey ward, Geo. H. Waring, I. S. Mumford, W. C. Baker, John J. Cathoun, and the general officers are at Cartersville, 6a. Bonds to the amount of $20,000 and stock to the amount of $20,000 and stock to the amount of $10,000 per mile have been issued.

ker, John J. Cathoun, and the general others are at Cartersville, 6a. Bonds to the amount of $20,000 and stock to the amount of $10,000 per mile have been issued.

The line, commencing at the junction of the Western and Atlantic, with the East and West Rail road of Alabama, forms a good connection with these roads for business. The extension of the Rome and Decatur railroad from Rome to Cartersville gives a similar connection with that road, which is mow finished from Rome to Attalla, and projected thence to Decatur, Ala. At Rome, a connection is obtained with the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus road, just finished; all of these roads west of Cartersville ponetrate a region teeming with coal, from manoanese, limestone and timber, and will furnish the country east of Cartersville with the rule they now so much need. From Cartersville, the line runs for the first twenty miles directly through the great from and manganese districts of north Georgia. A large business would at once be opened up for the transportation of these ores, as soon as the road reaches them. Passing through Beasley's Gap, Pine Log Mountains, the road enters the great marble region and traverses it for a distance of twenty miles, crossing the Marieita and North Georgia railread at Ball Ground. Just beyond Ball Graund the line enters the valley of Long Bwamp creek, and three miles above are located probably the most extensive marble quarries in the country, operated by the Georgia Marble company. An easy connection can be made with these works, which will give them their shortest line to both eastern and western markets. This marble can be opened in many other places immediately on the line enters the gold formation and traverses a splendid agricultural country to its connection with the Richmond and Danville railroad at or near Gainesville; and by its connection with the Richmond and Danville railroad at or near Gainesville and by its connection with the Richmond and Danville railroad at or near Gainesville and by its connection with the Richmo

Three Hallroad Kings.

In 1847, J. Edgar Thomson, an engineer of experience, entered the service of the Pennsylvania failroad, of which he was atterward became president. Three years laier a young man without experience in railroad business applied to him for a position as clerk in the station at Duncansvile, and was, with some hesitation, accepted. Not long after—so runs the story—an influential slipper entered the station and demanded that some transfers should be made in a manner contrary to the rules of the company. This the clerk refused to do; and when the influential shipper tried to attend to the matter himself, he was foreibly ejected from the premises. Indignantly at this, he complained to the authorities, demanding that the obnoxious employe be removed from his position. He was—and was promoted to a muchigher one. As an active and enterprising railroad organizer, Scott was probably unrivaled—especially when aided by the soberer judgment of Thomson, mor has the operating denartment of any other railroad in the country reached the standard established on the Pennsylvania by Scott and Thomson, and the men trained under their eyes. But in business sagacity, and those qualities that pertain to the financial management of property, Scott was surpassed by Vanderbilt. The work of the two men was so totally different in character that it is hard to compare them. Vanderbilt was not as distinctly a railroad man as Scott.—Scribner's for Cother.

Early Days of Railroading. When we picture the surroundings of the traveler upon railways during the first ten or fifteen years of their existence, we find his journey was not to be envied. He was jammed into his narrow seat with a stift back, the deck of the car was low and first and seathers in waiter investible. The seat with a stiff back, the deck of the car was low and flat, and ventilation in winter impossible. The springs of the car were hard, the joiting intolerable, the windows rattled like those of the medern omnibus, and conversation was a luxury that could be indulged in only by those of recognized superiority in lung power. The breaks were clumsy and of little service. The ends of the flat bar raifs were cut diagonally, so that when laid down they would lap and form a smoother joint. Occasionally they became sprung: the spikes would not hold, and the end of the rail with its sharp point, rose high enough for the wheel to run under it, rip it loose and send the pointed end through the floor of the Car. This was called a "snake's head," and the unlucky being sitting over it was likely to be impaled against the roof. So that the traveler of that day, in addition to his other miseries, whis in momentary apprehension of being spitted like a Christian turkey.—General Horace Porter, in Scribner's Magazine.

The Central is advertising low rates to the East Alabama fair, which will be held at Opelika October 27 to November 3, inclusive.

Henry Byrne has been appointed soliciting agent for the Queen and Crescent system, with beadquarters at Montgomery.

Mr. George Wadley has just completed the stupendous work of building 375 miles of the Mexican National railway within eighteen months. A stiverspike, the last that was required to complete this greatest system of Mexican railways, was driven by two Mexican ladles.

The suprescore are health at war locating.

The surveyors are busily at work locating the permanent line of the Savannah and Western. Montgomery is celebrating the completion of a new road from Montgomery to Potsburg, a dis-tance of forty-eight miles, and says it will be rapidly attended.

& telegram from Knoxville, Tenn., says.

THE GEORGIA AND CAROLINA COAST

Pate Committee Adjourns-Meeting of the Railway Mail Clerks in Cincinnati-The New Traffic Association.

NEW YORK, October 12 .- The latest new interest regarding the southern railroad situation, outlines the building of a new road to be called the Georgia and Carolina Coast It is understood that a strong syndicate has been formed and plenty of money offered to build and equip this road. The plan as it is made public here, indicates that the road would be allianced with the Georgia, Carolina and Northern, as it is proposed to make a connection with it at Chehaw. om Chehaw it is proposed to build an airline along the coast, taking in Port Royal, Sa' vannah, Brunswick, and then direct to Jack-

This is all that can be learned as to the line of the road. It is understood that a survey of this route will be ordered at once.

The Railway Mail Clerks.

The following railway mail clerks will leave Atlanta Sunday night for Cincianati, to attend the annual meeting of their association which will be held in that city, beginning on the 16th instant: Superintendent B. M. Turner will head the delegation; H. M. Robinson, D. A. Shumate, R. T. Allison, H. S. Moore, Jr., J. E. Woodward, J. T. Miller. The association is organized on the mutual benefit plan, and has a large membership. Mr. W. H. Arnold, of Greenville, S. C., will join the Atlanta party and go to Cincianati with them.

Texas Open to Georgia Travel. So many conflicting statements were in cirmlation yesterday regarding the Texas quarantine, that The Constitution wired for official informa-tion, asking the question as to whether travelers from Georgia holding certificates of health would be flowed to enter Texas. The answer was as fol-

Galveston, Texas, October 12.—Yes, but the quar-antine is still in force against travel from Florida, Alabama and Mississippi. The News. The Rate Committee. The members of the freight rate committee who were in Atlanta, held a meeting yesterday, but no business of consequence was transacted. Only six of the twelve roads having a membership in the Southern Railway and Steamship association were represented, and the meeting was adjourned, subject to the call of the chairman. The lack of attendance prevented the transaction of important business in reference to classification and rates,

A New Association. A New Association.

The Texas Traffic association will disband on Monday, the 15th Instant, and a new association, to be called the International, will be formed. The following roads will have a membership in the new association: Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe; Denver and Fort Worth; Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe; Houston, East and West Texas railway; Houston and Texas Central; International and Great Northern; Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis; Missouri Facific; Mexican Central; Mexican International; Bouthern Pacific; St. Louis, Arkansas and Texas; St. Louis, Inon Mountain and Southern; St. Louis and San Francisco; San Antonio and Akransas Pas; Texas Central; Texas and Pacific; Little Rock and Memphis.

Uniform Cotton Rates. The local representatives of the Queen and Crescent system, the Central railroad of Georgia, the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham, the Georgia Pacific and the Lousville and Nashville, have arranged to meet saily in Birmingham for the purpose of comparing and agreeing upon cotton rates. These rates will be used in the billing of cotton destined for foreign ports.

The Cartersville and Gainesville.

An elegantly printed prospectus has just been is-sued, giving a great deal of interesting information garding the projected Cartersville and Gainesville ir-Line railroad. The directors of this road are lesses. W. H. Howard, M. A. Hardin, W. J. Hey ard, Geo. H. Warring, L. S. Mumford, W. C. Baer, John J. Calhoun, and the general officers at Cartersville, Ga. Bonds to the amount of $10,000 and stock to the amount of $10,000 per mile ave been issued.

$20,000 and stock to the amount of $10,000 per mile have been issued.

The line, commencing at the junction of the Western and Atlantic, with the East and West Rail road of Alabama, forms a / good connection with these roads for business. The extension of the Rome and Decatur railroad from Rome to Cartersville gives a similar connection with that road, which is now finished from Rome to Attalla, and projected thence to Decatur, Alu. At Rome, a connection is obtained with the Chattaneoga, Rome and Columbus road, just finished; all of these roads west of Cartersville ponetrate a region teeming with coal, fron. atined with the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus road, just finished; all of these roads west of Cartersville penetrate a region teeming with coal, fron, manoanese, limestone and timber, and will furnish the country cast of Cartersville with the nuel they now so much need. From Cartersville, the line runs for the first twenty miles directly through the great fron and manganese districts of north Georgia. A large business would at once be opened up for the transportation of these ores, as soon as the road reaches them. Passing through Beasley's Gap. Fine Log Mountains, the road enters the great marble region and traverses it for a distance of twenty miles, crossing the Marleita and North Georgia railread at Ball Ground. Just beyond Ball Graund the line enters the valley of Long Swamp creek, and three miles above are located probably the most extensive marble quarries in the country, operated by the Georgia Marble company. An easy connection can be made with these works, which will give them their shortest line to both eastern and western markets. This marble can be opened in many other places immediately on the line enters the gold formation and traverses a splendid agricultural country to its connection with the Richmond and Danville railroad at or near Gainesville; and by its connection with the Richmond and Bloonnets with the Gainesville, Jefferson and Southern, and with the age RECHMOND and DANVILLE RAIFORD to all points reached by that system; and also connects with the Gainesville, Jefferson and Southern, and with the projected and partiall, built road from Gainesville to Augusta, the latter road passing through Jefferson, Athens, Washington and Augusta.

Three Railroad Kings, In 1847, J. Edgar Thomson, an engineer of experience, entered the service of the Pennsylvania failroad, of which he was atterward became presiexperience, entered the service of the remnsylvania railroad, of which he was afterward became president. Three years later a young man without experience in railroad business applied to him for a position as clerk in the station at Duncansvile, and was, with some hesitation, accepted. Not long after—so runs the story—an influential shipper entered the station and demanded that some transfers should be made in a manner contrary to the rules of the company. This the clerk refused to do; and when the influential shipper tried to attend to the matter himself, he was forcibly ejected from the premises. Indignantly at this, he compalined to the authorities, demanding that the obnoxious employe be removed from his position. He was—and was promoted to a much higher one. As an active and enterprising railroad organizer, Scott was probably unrivaled—especially when aided by the soberer judgment of Thomson, inor has the operating department of any other railroad in the country reached the standard established on the Pennsylvaria by Scott and Thomson, and the men trained under their eyes. But in business sagacity, and those qualities that pertain to the financial management of property, Scott was surpassed by Vanderbilt. The work of the two men was so totally different in character that it is hard to compare them. Vanderbilt was not se distinctly a railroad man as Scott.—Scribner's for Cetober.

Early Days of Railroading. When we picture the surroundings of the when we picture the surroundings of the traveler upon railways during the first ten or fifteen years of their existence, we find his journey was not to be envied. He was jammed into his narrow seat with a stift back, the deck of the car was low and flat, and ventilation in winter impossible. The springs of the car were hard, the jolting intolerable, the windows rattled like those of the medern omnibus, and conversation was a luxury that could be the windows rattled like those of the medern omnibus, and conversation was a luxury that could be indulged in only by those of recognized superiority in lung power. The breaks were clumsy and of littie service. The ends of the flat bar rails were cut disponally, so that when laid down they would lap and form a smoother joint. Occasionally they became sprung: the spikes would not hold, and the end of the rail with its sharp point, rose high enough for the wheel to run under it, rip it loose and send the peinted end through the floor of the car. This was called a "snake's head," and the unlucky being sitting over it was likely to be impaled against the roof. So that the traveler of that day, in addition to his other miseries, was in momentary apprehension of being spitted like a Christian turkey.—General Horace Porter, in Scribngr's Magzine,

The Insurance on the Building Adjusted but Not on the Books and Furniture. The insurance on the Books and Furniture.

The insurance on the Young Men's Library association building has been adjusted and repairs are being pushed as rapidly as possible. Librarian Fowler says that in a week or ten days the business of the library will be resumed, as the outside work on the roof will be completed in that time. In the meantime no books will be issued. The books and furniture are now being arranged with a view to adjusting the insurance, and the handsome hall and parlors are in just about as thoroughly demorphy arranged with a view to adjusting the insurance, and the handsome hall and parlors are in just about as thoroughly demorphy. parlors are in just about as thoroughly demor-alized a cendition as they could well be. The damaged books will not be sold, nor is it thought that any of the paintings will be, though some of the furniture must be disposed probably be $1,000 or $1,200.

The loss to the building has been adjusted at $2,440. The following table shows the insur-

The only loss besides that of the Y. M. L. A., is to the stock of Mr. H. L. Atwater.

Governor Gordon, who expected to leave for New York city yesterday, did not get off until this morning. He will be gone about ten days. He has two objects in view in visiting New York at this time. One is to see whether or not it is best to sell the Atlantic and Southern Telegraph company stock owned by the state of Georgia. It will be necessary for him to investigate this important matter in connection with the president of the Western Union Telegraph company, because this company's indersement of the stock in question expires in 1830. It is thought that at this time the stock can be sold to advantage. The governor's other object is to get a few days rest and recreation before entering upon his laborous duties during the session of the Governor Gordon, who expected to leave for

We are willing to bear personal testimony to the efficacy and value of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which we have been advertising some years in our paper, having used it for blood impurities with great success. It is a preparation of standard merit, made of perfectly pure ingredients, and thoroughly effective in cleansing and purifying the system. For cruptions, boils, etc., it can be relied upon every time. Our own experience with it has been most gratifying, and we are glad to giveit this endorsement.—Athol (Mass.) Transcript.

THE GOSPEL ARMY

Start Up a Respectable Opposition to the Salvation Army.

The Gospel Army!
There were six of them in rank as they marched through the streets last evening, and one of them was a preacher from Florida. Captain Wilson and his wife, the latter with the rank of sergeant, manipulate the tambourines and do the singing. Their songs are same as those used in the Salvation Army.

They are on the increase and bid fair to divide contributions and victims about evenly with the Salvation Army. The uniform is about the same. Their hadge is a cross, about three inches in length, bearing the inscription:

"GOSPEL ARMY."

At their hall, 83 South Forsyth street, about thirty were assembled last evening to listen to the preacher from Florida. The new army is spreading consternation among the followers of Captain Foos. When the new drum comes the Salvation Army must go.

SPELLING BEES.

ACCORDION UNQUESTIONABLY THE WAY TO SPELL IT.

ame Account of Atlanta's First Bee and the One Which Followed-A Novel Bee Spoken Of. The spelling bee was the all-absorbing topic f conversation yesterday.

The question of an "e" for an "i" did it.

The people of Atlanta were terribly divided out the word "accordion." There was a world of kicking on all sides. That little "e" in the last syllable was sternly insisted on, and many and vigorous were the warm words in reference thereto all

But long before the shades of evening fell, all was peace and harmony again.

Hot discussion was followed by cool investigation. Libraries were ransacked. Book stores were invaded. Old spelling books were drawn from dusty shelves. Cyclopedias were tackled. Histories of music were poured over.

The result was that the public gradually weakened, and, at length, with deep reluc-tance, bowed in the presence of majestic au-

People who had always spelled it accordeon, had always seen it written accordeon in news-papers, in sketches, in books, and even on music boxes which contained the instrument, were forced, with tears in their eyes, to give it

The pleasant delusion of a life time was rudely dispelled in a day.

Major Slaton was right. Mr. T. W. Jones

Major Slaton was right. Mr. 1. W. Jones was right. The brave struggling spellers who had gasped "deon" with their latest breath and kicked like Texas steers, even after they had gone down, were dead wrong. And Mr. Howell C. Jackson was honestly entitled to the cake.

For Webster said "accordion," Worcester said "accordion." Walker said "accordion." Clarendon's dictionary said "accordion." Chambers' cyclopedia said "accordion." The International cyclopedia said "accordion." The New American cyclopedia said "accordion." Nothing said "accordeon" except the music boxes, and people who thought that they knew more about it than the great authorities. In ne authority was the word found to be written "accordeon," and in no authority was It was very provoking, indeed, but the gist of what all of the authorities said was simply this: "Accordion—A little wind instrument, out of which music is pumped by the alternate pressure of the fingers upon little keys."

Spelling Ree Gossip. The spelling bee craze had its origin in England early in the seventies. It rapidly spread over the then known world, knocking New York city silly about a year later, paralyzing Boston about six months after, almost suspend ing business in Chicago two years thereafter, and then gradually working its way south. In 1875 the wave struck Atlanta.

The preliminaries were at once arranged, and DeGive's opera house was selected as the The first spelling bee in Atlanta drew a big rowd and was a shining success.

About thirty gentlemen took part. There About thirty gentlemen took part. There were no loaders. The contestants simply stood up in a circle on the stage. Major Slaton got in the center of the circle and handed the words around. The rule required him to limit himself to Webster's old spelling book.

Shortly after the trouble began the boys began falling like leaves in autumn—going down on such easy words as "quintessence" "dromedary," "inaugurate," "hallelujah," "ptisan," etc.

Mr. Charlie Herbst, the well remembered ibrarian, was forced to surrender on "inaugu-ate." He was accused of spelling it with two g's, but to this day bitterly denies the charge. Colonel Marcellus Thornton fell a mitilated rictim to "hallelugain."

The writer of this keeled over on "repelent." He insisted upon putting in an "a."

Mr. Henry W. Grady was requested to spell trafficking. He asked Major Siaton if he would have it with or without the "k." The iled grimly and stated that he wanted it "right."

Mr. Grady then spelled it without the "k."

"That's wrong," said the major.

Mr. Grady then advanced solemnly to the footlights and made a speech which convulsed the audience. Among other things he said that he had spelled the word correctly, and even if he hadn't, he claimed that he had just as much right to spell it without a "k." as Webster or Worcester had to use the "k." He said, too, that he once knew a boy who had spelled socks "sox." He said that the boy was clearly right, because

He said that the boy was clearly right, because if so-x didn't spell socks, he would like to know what it did spell.

The audience howled with delight but Mr. Grady was ruled out just the same. But nobody has ever been able to prove that t-r-a-f-f-i-c-in-g don't spell trafficking. Judge Marshall J. Clarke, Colonel E. Y. Clarke and Mr. Pascal J. Moran were at last left to fight it out.

They did great work for a time, and excitement ten high.

They did great work for a time, and excitement ran high.

Colonei Clark dropped out on "feofiment."

Judge Clarke and Mr. Moran had it all to themselves amid intense excitement. They were well matched, and it looked for some time as if it would be a "draw."

But Mr. Moran tripped on "ptarmigan," or some such horrible word, and Judge Marshall J. Clarke was alone in his glory.

The first prize was Webster's unabridged, and in receiving it Judge Clarke brought down the house by exclaiming in the words of a distinguished general who died long before the war.

war:
One more such victory, and I am, indeed,

Mr. Moran got the second prize an elegant edition of Thomas Hood's poems—which he prizes to this day.

This first "Bee" in Atlanta was followed by another, a few weeks later, which drew an immense audience and produced great excitement. It was given at the opera house, and there were about lifteen spellers on the stage. Atlanta had been given the cue, and spelling bees sprang up all over the south.

More to Come. The "Bee" wave seems to have struck Atlanta again, and the great contest of Thursday night will probably lead to others just as full of interest.

It was rumored yesterday that a number of ladies and gentlemen will soon arrange a novel spelling bee which will be given for the benefit of St. Philip's church. It is said that a number of ladies will spell against the same number of gentlemen. This unique entertainment, if given, will pack the opera house.

There is nothing to equal them.

The telephone at the stationhouse, with the aid of the mounted force and patrol wagon, is worth to the present force as much as twenty extra men, which would cost the city about extra men, which would cost the city about eighteen thousand dollars a year. There are in the city over three hundred residences from which the police can receive calls, and the fire department gets a great many fire alarms in this way. The telephone, with all these advantages, is indispencable. It is there ready for use day and night, and "I would not think of leaving my wife at home without a telephone," said one gentleman. "With it she can call a policeman, report a fire, call a doctor, telephone the grocer, the market or the drugstore.

tor, telephone the grocer, the market or the drugstore.

It's use in a private residence, when properly considered, is worth almost as much as it is in a store. The time has come when the use of the telephone as a comfort and laxury has given away to an actual necessity. We remember the time of the Decatur riot, and in times of election returns, etc., Atlanta was like one family, aimost. And when such times come, the managers remain at the central and see that the use of the telephone is not retarded. When ever there is a fire down town at night, Mr. Juckson is notified. He then calls up all persons whose places of business are in danger. The universal kindness of the managers and employes makes all feel safer with a telephone in the house. The telephone, as managed by Messrs, Gentry and Jackson, is a success, and they deserve much credit for the success of the business. Mr. Gentry is a gentleman of experience in the business, and with his able assistant is untiring in his efforts to please the subscribers and build up the exchange. If any one does not believe Atlanta has a good telephone service let him inquire of some friend or go and use the telephone in other cities. Then he will be convinced that Atlanta excels in this enterprise as she does in every other. Then he will be convinced that the in this enterprise as she does in every other.

WILL YOU HELP?

Here is a school that you are not aware of. It is a day school for the poor children in the neighborhood of the Marietta street mission. The school has been going on one month, and 57 children have been enrolled. This work is one of charity and you are interested in it. Money is required to pay the teachers, buy the books, and if you will make contribution it will be most thankfully received. It is almost im-possible for these poor children to go to public schools, and this mission school has been stagted with the hope that it can be carried on, and assist those who most need help. When you think of the many advantages and luxuries your own children are enjoying, stop a moment and think of the poor children almost without any opportunity whatever. Will you help them? If so, send your contribution to Mr. J. H. Barclay. Send it in soon, as money is wanted to buy clothes and books. Try it, Mothers - Try it now. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething, is the best remedy in the world for all diseases of children. Twentyfive cents a bottle.

REASON.

To the Citizens of Atlanta and Vicinity.

I wish to address you individually and col-lectively. I am now seiling at auction a line of goods that are unsurpassed in this or any other market. Therefore I ask you, one and all, is it not better by far to buy these elegant and staple goods at your own price, or do you think it better to pay the exorbitant prices asked by the regular retail trade? If you prefer to have goods that you can buy at your own price, then I invite you to attend the auction sale that I am now holding at No. 5 Whitehall street, for the purpose of reducing my immense stock. I must have the money for these goods and take this course to dispose

What doleare what my competitors say? It is quite natural for them to condemn my goods, but buy these goods at my sale at your own price, and if you take them home and examine them, if not equally as good or better, and much cheaper than you can buy of my cempetitors, return the goods and I will give you your money you pay for them. Now if you can buy goods at your own price at my sale, why pay two prices elsewhereb
